SHANNEN SPELLS IT OUT

Shannen Doherty – once labelled the bad girl of Beverly Hills, 90210 – is currently behaving herself impeccably in London W1. In the UK to publicise her hit series Charmed, she indeed pronounces herself 'charmed' with the streets of London. 'It's so different than, like, Los Angeles,' she enthuses. 'I'm going to Harvey Nichols later today. I'm really looking forward to that.'

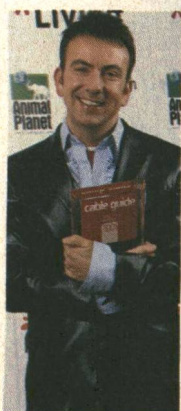

On a longer-term basis, 30-year-old Doherty has much to look forward to. She has already directed three episodes of Charmed and as her career progresses she hopes to do less in front of the camera and more behind it, although she admits an ambition to appear in the acclaimed mafia drama The Sopranos. Next to Sex and the City, The Sopranos is her favourite TV show. 'I would love to be in it,' she says. 'I could be some crazy mobster's girlfriend. It doesn't matter that I'm Irish. The Irish mob and the Italian mob could collide.'

I disturb her reverie by asking whether she looks back fondly on Beverly Hills, 90210? 'I never look back on it,' she says, shortly. Which is understandable. Although the series made her famous, it also turned her into tabloid fodder. She earned notoriety for turning up late on set, being rude to colleagues, brawling, and was fired at least once by executive producer Aaron Spelling – on whose daughter, actress Tori Spelling, she was considered a thoroughly bad influence.

'Some of it I brought on myself,' she says, when I push her to explain her reputation. 'But 80 per cent of it was completely false. I was 18, trying to grow up. I behaved no differently than any girl going to fraternity parties. But I had to do it under a spotlight. At one time I was living on Mulholland Drive, behind gates, but when I woke up there were photographers in my backyard, taking pictures of me in my pyjamas. I also had threatening letters. I was stalked. That was hard to deal with. I still find it odd in our business that you embrace somebody, but the minute they screw up you discard them.'

Still, if she's learned one thing it's how to deal with snooping paparazzi, she says. 'I have three dogs – an English Mastiff, a German Shepherd and an Australian Shepherd. And they're all attack-trained.'

Charmed, Living, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 8.00pm

Everything's Roseby

Paul Roseby, urbane presenter of Weekends Away, has travelled extensively in Scandinavia, but it was North Africa where he trod on thin ice. While in a Tunis carpet shop, Roseby picked up a photograph of a distinguished-looking man, and said, 'Is this the chief carpet salesman?' No, he was told, it was the country's president. Roseby's cheeky response, 'What's the difference?', was construed as a major insult.

There was a flurry of indignation, and he counts himself lucky that he's not languishing in a Tunisian jail right now.

After all, stranger things have happened. Not least in France, where Roseby stood outside a church watching two men holding down a struggling girl in the back of a car. Assuming she was being kidnapped, he rushed over to a pair of gendarmes, who unfortunately turned out to be traffic wardens. By the time he got back to the church the trio were gone. Inside the church he saw the two men again, praying. 'It transpired that they had brought the girl to be exorcised, which is a very rare thing.'

So much for Dijon and Tunis. What is Roseby's favourite destination for a weekend away? He mulls it over and finally says Helsinki. 'It's got great modern art, wonderful architecture, and everyone's so grateful that you're there.'

In the meantime, he has dozens more cities to explore: 'We recommend what to see, where to eat, where to drink.'

To feature in Weekends Away, destinations must be within three hours of the UK by plane or train, or within the UK, of course. 'We've even featured Swansea and Birmingham. There's as much to do in Birmingham as there is in Tunis.' Weekends Away, UK Style, Mondays from 23rd, 9.00pm

High drama to the end for Xena

The final season of Xena: Warrior Princess will end on a high note, according to its creators. It was announced last October that the show would come to an end with the sixth season (starting this month), after a phenomenally successful six-year run which has seen the series shown worldwide in more than 115 countries.

The series' producer, Rob Tapert, pointed out that 'Xena has been a labour of love and we've been unusually lucky in having had the freedom to explore anything we've ever wanted to try – from high-action dramas to slapstick comedies to musicals. We're excited about the shows we're currently producing, and we hope to deliver some of the best episodes we've ever done.'

With Xena and her sidekick Gabrielle (Renée O'Connor) now stuck 25 years in their future, accompanied by Xena's daughter, Eve, and Joxer's son, Virgil, the pair face new enemies in their final 22 episodes. The group travel from Xena's haunted home village of Amphipolis, around Greece to North Africa, India and even Japan, where the cataclysmic climax is set.

'The finale is our most expensive episode yet,' claims Xena's star Lucy Lawless. 'It's also the most defiant episode we've done. The show has changed my life in every way. Not only did I meet my husband Rob [Tapert], but I also had the privilege of working with the most gifted and hard-working crew imaginable.'

In the blood

In the early stages of her career, Emilia Fox carried around five explanatory words like an appendage – 'actress daughter of Edward Fox' accompanied almost every mention of her in the press. But these days, Edward Fox is well on the way to becoming 'actor father of Emilia Fox'.

At 27, she is established as one of the brightest and most versatile performers of her generation, and able to flit from comedy-drama on television (Randall & Hopkirk [Deceased]), with Vic Reeves and Bob Mortimer) to heavy-duty theatre (Coriolanus and Richard II, in which she has been starring from New York to Tokyo, alongside Ralph Fiennes). And now on to eagerly awaited film – The Pianist, Roman Polanski's partly autobiographical picture about the persecution of Jews in wartime Poland, which she has been filming in Warsaw and Berlin.

But I call Emilia to talk about Bad Blood, a tense supernatural thriller created by Tony Marchant, the BAFTA Award-winning writer of TV dramas Holding On and last year's Never Never, to name a few.

She plays Jackie Shipton, 'a rather hysterical nurse' working with a heart surgeon, played by Alex Jennings (both pictured, left). Steven Mackintosh and Lia Williams also star in the drama, in which an infertile couple visit Romania to adopt a long awaited child – but at a chilling price.

In preparation for her role, Fox spent a day at London's Middlesex Hospital observing open-heart surgery. 'It was the most amazing thing to watch,' she says. 'At first, when the anaesthetic went in, I felt terribly squeamish. And yet all the horror went away. I lost my squeamishness and was just fascinated by it all.'

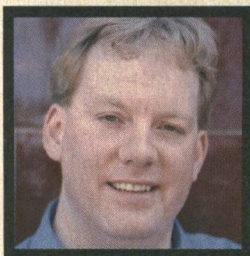

Looking back, acting seems to have been her destiny. After all, both her parents were in the business (her mum is Joanna David, a fine actress herself, who was most recently seen in ITV's six-part The Glass). They met while appearing in The Rivals at Chichester Theatre. Not forgetting her uncle, James Fox, and her paternal grandfather, Robin Fox, who was a celebrated theatrical agent.

Yet, until she went to Oxford University, Emilia – known as Milly to her nearest and dearest – had no plans whatever to go into the acting profession. So what did she intend to do? Heart surgery? 'No, that was before my flirtation with heart surgery. I suppose I thought I'd probably become a journalist.' Ah, an even muckier trade than heart surgery. But she would doubtless have made a very good job of that, too.

SPOTLIGHT

Celebrity gossip with Sky News' showbiz guru

NEIL SEAN

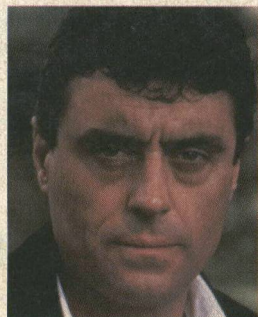

There's sad news for keen viewers of sitcom Bette (Living) – the divine Miss Midler has decided not to make any further series, preferring to concentrate on her forthcoming stage shows in Las Vegas. Bette, which also features Brit star James Dreyfuss from sitcom Gimme Gimme Gimme (UK Gold), was Bette's first foray into TV. But keep a look-out, as we can exclusively reveal that the diva is now planning some UK stage dates.

Next time you go to the cinema look closely and you may see Sky News presenter Bob Friend on screen. Bob has already enjoyed film fame in the sci-fi blockbusters Independence Day and Men In Black, and has just signed on for a movie starring Michael Caine to be shot in Spain. Bob will be playing – you guessed it – a newsreader!

Stunning Sky Sports presenter Kirsty Gallacher has one dream, and that is to be a Bond girl. Well, it looks as though that dream is about to become a reality – Kirsty's beauty has impressed the Bond producers, who are actively talking to 'her people', as they say.

Lovejoy (UK Gold) aficionados will be pleased to know that the rugged rogue dealer will be coming back to our screens almost seven years after the last series. Ian McShane, currently starring in the hit musical The Witches of Eastwick in London's West End, will once again play Lovejoy on television early next year.

Family Fortunes (Challenge TV) presenter Les Dennis is hopeful he'll make it big in the movies. Fresh from his stint in Brookside (Living), Les will be on cinema screens this autumn. In the film, entitled Large, Les plays a gameshow host with a sinister side – but it all comes good in the end.

IN PRODUCTION

Passport to love

Thousands of singles are competing for a place in Sky One's The Villa. Words: Kylie Northover

Wanted: 46 single guys and 46 single girls to spend an all-expenses paid week in a Mediterranean villa, with the possibility of finding love. The catch? Their every movement will be broadcast to the nation on Sky One's The Villa.

After two successful series The Villa returns this autumn, and the search is on for singles prepared to bare their all – often literally – for the cameras.

Described as 'Blind Date meets Big Brother', The Villa features four girls and four guys in each episode. Their personal details have been entered into a matchmaking computer programme, and, ideally, each should get together with their perfect match.

The Villa's fly-on-the-wall style had viewers hooked throughout the last two series, and more than 1000 hopefuls from around the country applied to be part of the new series.

'As well as the appeal of meeting a partner, the show's a lot of fun,' Matthew Young, The Villa's producer, says.

The docu-soap-style show provides entertaining results, with love, cat-fights and debauchery all playing a part – the antics of one couple even made the pages of the News of the World.

'But our computer matching process is done very seriously,' Young adds. Contestants complete questionnaires asking what they seek in a partner, right down to hair colour. Those chosen don't know who they've been matched with, and that's where the fun begins.

The sordid moments may grab the headlines, but there has been a major success story – a couple from the first series are now engaged.

'We've got our first Villa wedding,' Young enthuses. 'We want them to fly to Spain and get married at the villa!'

FRASIER IS IN THE BUILDING

The eighth series of Frasier debuts on cable this autumn. Find out what happens after Niles and Daphne declare their love when the new series airs on Paramount Comedy Channel.

SABRINA'S WITCH REPORT

Nickelodeon's going Sabrina-tastic in September with new episodes of Sabrina the Teenage Witch, a Sabrina Sunday Special and the movie Sabrina, Down Under. Spellbinding!

KING OF THE SWINGERS

September sees Tarzan swinging into town with the British television premiere on Disney Channel, starring the vocal talent of Glenn Close (who also wows us with her singing ability), Rosie O'Donnell and Brian Blessed. Minnie Driver expertly voices Jane. Phil Collins co-produced the rousing soundtrack, and won an Oscar for the song You'll be in my Heart.

PARK LIFE

If you weren't lucky enough to bag yourself a ticket to this year's Party in the Park, it doesn't mean you'll miss out. 95.8 Capital FM's Party in the Park for the Prince's Trust, featuring 26 acts from around the world performing to 100,000 fans in London's Hyde Park, will be broadcast live on ITV2. Millions more fans will be watching at home, as CD:UK's Ant and Dec, along with Cat Deeley, present the six-hour broadcast.

As former chart-toppers themselves, in the incarnation of PJ & Duncan, Ant and Dec are the perfect authorities to lead the biggest date on the pop calendar. On the eve of Party in the Park, we caught up with Ant and Dec to talk music ...

Who are you most looking forward to seeing at Party in the Park?

Ant and Dec are both in agreement: David Gray. 'His album White Ladder is still a firm favourite on my hi-fi,' Ant says.

What is the best outdoor gig you've been to?

'Oasis at Knebworth was a fantastic day. They were at their height, the sun was shining and the whole crowd was loving it', Ant says. 'I also really enjoyed Knebworth,' Dec adds. 'The gig itself wasn't amazing, but the weather was brilliant and we had a real good time.'

If you could put together a list of artists (living or dead) for a gig, what would your dream line-up be?

Ant: 'The Beatles, Blur, Bowie, Supergrass, The Doors, Bob Dylan ... the list could go on and on.'
Dec: 'Tough one. It would have to include The Beatles, The Monkees, Donovan, The Stone Roses, Happy Mondays, Supergrass and Coldplay. An even mix of a few generations of music that would go quite nicely.'

What's your favourite summertime music?

Ant: 'The new Daft Punk album is the best summer album, by far.'
Dec: 'Current music, but it's also a perfect opportunity to get out some of the old stuff. I love some 1960s music during the summer.'

Can you give us any inside gossip or anecdotes about any of the stars appearing at Party in the Park?

'Almost all of them have been on CD:UK, so we know their little secrets,' Ant reveals, 'but my lips are sealed!'

'I don't think they'd come back on our show if we started dishing the dirt,' Dec adds. 'I'm saving it all for my autobiography!'

Do you have any plans to resurrect PJ & Duncan?

'None at all!' Dec says, emphatically. 'We had a great time, released three albums and toured all over the world, but it's in the past. I'm a much happier music lover than performer!'

As music lovers, then, what were the first singles you ever bought?

Ant: 'Living Doll by Cliff Richard and The Young Ones ... It was for charity, OK?'

Dec: 'Golden Brown by The Stranglers. It's still one of my all-time favourite records.'

What is the one thing those attending Party in the Park should bring with them?

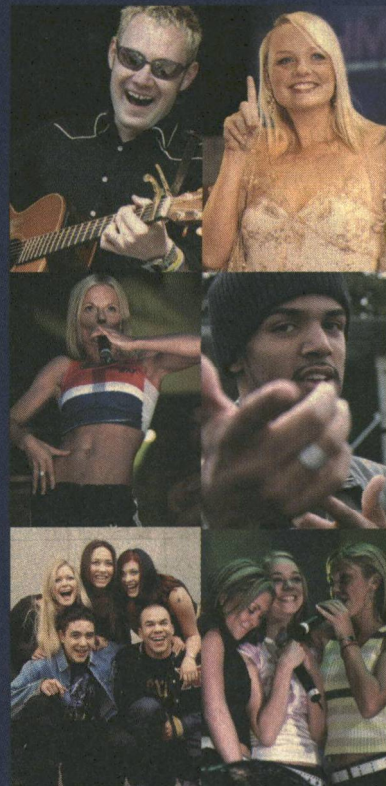

'Their party head,' says Dec. 'It's going to be such a huge day that everyone will want to let their hair down and really enjoy it - artists and audience!' 'But if it's the same as last year,' Ant adds, 'they should bring an umbrella!'

“ Almost all the stars have been on CD:UK, so we know their little secrets, but my lips are sealed ”

“Everyone will want to let their hair down and really enjoy it – artists and audience”

A galaxy of stars: among the artists at this year's Party in the Park are: (clockwise from right) David Gray; Emma Bunton; Craig David; Atomic Kitten; Hear'Say; Geri Halliwell.

PARTY IN THE PARK'S HOMEGROWN TALENT

Among the talent at this year's Party in the Park are some of British pop's top names.

And, as stars go, they don't come much bigger than Geri Halliwell, a well-known fan of the man behind the event, Prince Charles. Fresh from success with her second solo album, Scream If You Wanna Go Faster, Geri is one of the day's hottest acts, and her performance at Party in the Park will no doubt be larger than life.

Her former bandmate Emma Bunton, whose debut solo album, A Girl Like Me, went straight to the top of the charts, is another headlining name.

Craig David emerged as the UK's top R&B act last year with his collaboration with Artful Dodger on Re-Rewind. He was soon a household name with his hits Fill Me In and 7 Days. At this year's Brits, Craig was nominated for a record-breaking six awards, but failed to take any home.

In May, however, he picked up three prestigious Ivor Novello Songwriting Awards, beating David Gray to the Best Contemporary Songwriter crown. But it was a close call – Gray, too, has seen his star rise in the last year, with his fourth album, White Ladder, selling more than a million copies so far. Not bad for an album he recorded in his bedroom!

The band that needs no introduction, Hear'Say, will make an appearance at the Park (after recently becoming the first band to announce an arena tour on the back of one single), and the UK's favourite girl band of the moment, Atomic Kitten, will perform their worldwide hit Whole Again, after a break from their live shows.

Search for a star

MTV's Richard Blackwood is looking for a new co-presenter for a weekly live music show, preferably someone with no experience. Can you help? Interview: Kylie Northover

Looking for a new job? It may not be exactly what you are after, but MTV has a vacancy – co-hosting a brand new live show MTV on Call, alongside Richard Blackwood.

Qualifications required? None. Starting this month, Is She MTV? is the music channel's nationwide search for a new female co-presenter and the only stipulation is that you're not a seasoned professional.

Open auditions are being held for two days each at four cities around the country – Glasgow, Birmingham, Sheffield and London – where the first 2000 wannabes to turn up each day will be auditioned.

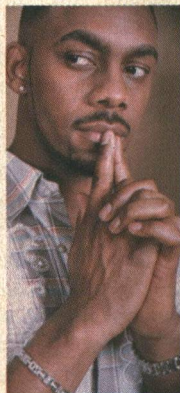

Since June Sarpong's departure earlier this year, Blackwood (voted Favourite Cable TV Personality at this year's Cable Guide Awards) has been presenting on his own. 'It's going to be hard to fill June's shoes,' he says, 'but that's what we're going to try and do. Whoever makes it will probably be catapulted into fame. We want someone who can have fun and leave their ego at the door. It's like an actor bringing something of themselves to a role – you've got to bring something of yourself, something special that only you've got, to the table.'

Hopeful TV presenters will face up to three levels of auditions in front of the MTV cameras and a panel of judges, including Blackwood himself. 'I think it will give people some inspiration if the person they'll be presenting with is there,' he says.

And if the thought of strutting your stuff in front of Mr Blackwood, who has experience as a comedian, presenter and a singer, makes you nervous, you're probably not cut out for the job. 'As it's live TV, you've got to be ready for anything, because you never know what will happen – it's very hard,' Blackwood says.

'There are times when the caller's not on the line, or whatever, and you've got to cover yourself. You might have to suddenly talk for one minute without any planning, which sounds easy, but it's a long time

got to be ready for anything
... you never know what will happen'

when you're going out live to air, believe me!

A finalist will be chosen from each of the eight auditions, and will have the opportunity to co-present with Blackwood live, for a segment on the Is She MTV? Finalist Shows in August.

Viewers will be asked to phone in and e-mail their opinions, and the following week MTV's new presenter will be announced live on air.

The winner will secure a three-month contract to co-present MTV on Call, and after that – who knows? MTV has proven a great launch pad for the careers of several well-known stars.

'There are people out there who have never had any training, who can be just what we're looking for – spontaneous, not afraid to go with something. You don't necessarily need to have had any training, and it can lead to great things,' Blackwood says.

'You've got Cat Deeley, whose first gig was on MTV, and now she's an A-list celebrity and Davina McCall – she started out on MTV.'

Blackwood himself was a stand-up comedian with no previous telly experience before he landed MTV Select. Before long, he was approached by Channel 4 to host his own programme, The Richard Blackwood Show.

'Coming from a stand-up background was very helpful, because I was used to being spontaneous,' he says. 'But I still had no TV experience.'

If you think this could well be your big break, Blackwood has some final pointers for you.

'My advice for anyone thinking of auditioning is that you've got to go into the audition knowing that you're going to get it,' he says.

'After my MTV audition, I walked out knowing it was mine – that's the key.'

Kitchen whizz kids

Taste CFN blends kids and their odd food preferences to create a TV feast. Words:

Tara Nathanson

Kids do have a taste for the weird and wonderful when it comes to their grub – red foods only, tuna marinated in apricot jam, strawberry sauce and chilli peppers. They're the kind of half-baked food combinations that any self-respecting television food network would hate to feature, right? Well, not according to Taste CFN and its latest series, Kids Eat the Funniest Things, which promises to make that age-old saying official.

The show's recipe is simple. Each episode will see James Martin and Rachel Robbins take two teams, made up of a parent and a couple of children, to the supermarket. The teams will be given five minutes to pick nine ingredients from three food groups (protein, fruit and vegetable, and carbohydrate), plus one other item. They then swap baskets and try to cook something from what they've been given. It's Supermarket Sweep garnished with Changing Rooms, but don't expect even a pinch of Masterchef – this is the show to relish kitchen calamities, where pancakes resemble scrambled eggs and upside-down cakes end the right way up.

James and Rachel are the first to agree with the show's maxim. 'We've had pilchards with cream, broccoli with honey, and melon stuffed with chocolates and at the end of each show the kids really do eat everything they've made!' says James. 'We decided to keep that bit in the show – their faces are amazing to watch.'

Although by the age of 12 James had cooked for the Queen Mother, he says: 'After this show I may avoid anything cooked by my godson – or any other children.'

Rachel, a cordon bleu-trained chef who makes her television debut on the show, couldn't agree more. She admits that all the creations score top marks for inventiveness, but, frankly, in some cases they're inedible.

'James and I are both perfectionists in the kitchen, but we've had to compromise a lot with this series because the kids take control.'

Rather diplomatically she adds: 'The combinations are weird, but the kids have been choosing some very healthy ingredients. Lots of chocolate, but plenty of fruit and veg too.'

Harking back to his own childhood, James lists Chinese takeaways, roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, and fish and chips among his favourite foods. Although rather unusually he hated tomato sauce, typically, he didn't eat his greens. 'The only greens I ate were mushy peas – I'll eat anything green now,' he says, though his tastes haven't changed that much. He still can't live without chocolate or bread and butter sarnies.

Rachel, on the other hand, prefers sensible eating – even her food fads are sensible (she's currently into exotic fruit!). 'I can't survive without olive oil and tomatoes in the larder and I could live forever on roast chicken.'

'When I was a child I loved my mum's Spaghetti Bolognese, which we always ate with dried Parmesan. Even nowadays it's the one dish on which only dried Parmesan will do.'

It comes as no surprise that she always ate her veggies, but strangely, not potatoes. 'Even chips!' she says. 'Now I absolutely love potatoes – however they're cooked. During this series James made a fantastic dish, roasting slices of potato in goose fat. I can't wait to try it myself.'

How many of the series' recipes will Rachel say that about? Not many, considering the culinary ineptness – and we're not just talking about the kids. 'The thing the series has really taught me is just how many mums and dads have absolutely no idea what to do in the kitchen,' she says. 'Hopefully they'll have learnt something.'

Baby for Adoption

Whisky is a lively six year old who lives with his mother Happy Dragon off the coast of the Moray Firth in Scotland. Traditionally, he would have a long, carefree life ahead of him with few natural dangers. A life full of friendship, fun and freedom to follow his natural instincts - exactly what any parent would want for their child. Unfortunately, today, many dolphins like Whisky are threatened daily by pollution, over-fishing, capture and drowning in fishing nets.

That is why WDCS, the Whale & Dolphin Conservation Society is asking you to adopt Whisky, or his friend Sundance, for just £3 a month. By doing so, you will be helping our fight to protect all whales and dolphins.

Return your form today and you will receive an adoption pack to introduce you to your chosen dolphin. You will also get regular mailings - our six-monthly full colour WDCS Magazine, plus quarterly newsletters - as well as our video, 'The World of Whales and Dolphins'. Junior adopters will receive four editions of our 8 page junior magazine throughout the year.

Send for your adoption pack today and start working with us to protect dolphins like Whisky in their natural environment. Spread the cost of your adoption by using the direct debit form below - it's easy for you and saves our administration costs.

Please tick the box by your chosen dolphin, then fill in your details below.

☐ WHISKY is a very lively youngster, first identified in 1994. He is usually spotted close to his mother, Happy Dragon. The pair are very adventurous and are often seen far from the other Moray Firth dolphins. He also spends a lot of time playing with another young dolphin named Sundance.

☐ SUNDANCE is a young male. He has an unusual 'orange' spot on his dorsal fin, making him easy to identify when he is spotted near the boats amongst the other dolphins. If he's not with the other Moray Firth dolphins, he can usually be found with his great friend Whisky.

☐ BUBBLES is a friendly, mature female with distinctive mottled skin markings. She is a grandmother, and spends much time with her daughter Porridge and grandchild Oats.

☐ SPLASH has a tall narrow fin and very distinctive mottled skin, which makes her easy to recognise. She is one of the few dolphins who stays in the Moray Firth all year round, and has been spotted over forty times in the last year!

I wish to become a Friend of the Dolphins for £3 a month

PARTY ON - AT WORK!

Sun, sea, and sadly behaving Brits. Would you like to be a holiday rep in Ibiza? The stars of Reps in Ibiza tell Tina Ogle why they do it

'My parents think I'm out here to doss, but they support me anyway. Maybe with this programme they'll see there's a lot of responsibility involved too'

A relentless sun beats down on a little beachside restaurant on the west coast of a small Spanish island. All is calm as a smiling waitress delivers perfectly cooked calamari and Cruzcampo beer to a handful of civilised tourists, busy admiring the view of the bay and sheltering under a strategically placed tree.

Booming music slowly shatters the peace as a glass-bottomed boat rounds the cove. As it docks, 170 sweaty British tourists swarm around the restaurant pool, grabbing sun loungers and tossing towels on the ground to secure their perfect spot. No one chooses to stay in the shade.

Welcome to Ibiza, '2wentys' style. A holiday company to rival 18-30, 2wentys specialises in cheap and cheerful package deals to sunny climes. Their slogan? 'Holidays that will change the way you walk.'

Quite what that means will become apparent over the summer as Sky One screens Reps in Ibiza, a new eight-part series that's been dubbed a 'sexy reality-soap'. This will follow the antics of six employees of 2wentys, from their training and induction in the UK to their arrival and season in Ibiza. They are chosen because of their expertise in 'living it up'.

Exactly what the latter means becomes more obvious as the afternoon unfolds. Two energetic reps head for a giant plastic Pepsi shell in the corner of the outdoor patio. Another rep assumes control of a PA system and urges everyone to go and get their free beer. A queue 20 long and four deep forms as pop music deafens all in a half-mile radius. After many beers have been swigged and a buffet of chicken wings, baked potatoes and coleslaw decimated, the games begin.

A semi-clad, belly-flop-into-the-pool competition is closely followed by a contest to find 'Mr Ibiza'. Eight eager volunteers down vast amounts of beer as fast as they can without spilling it, and then show off their acting skills to a loudly appreciative crowd – and we're not talking Shakespeare here.

But they know what they're doing, these reps, having answered an ad that said: 'If you're as off your head as our lot but responsible, organised, over 21 ...'

Nicole Shaffer, 21, from Essex, was inspired to apply after coming on a 2wentys holiday in Tenerife last year. The season is less than a month in and she's in seventh heaven: 'I absolutely fell in love with it and you're probably talking to the most enthusiastic person on the planet at the moment.'

It will be interesting to see whether she can maintain her fervour after six months of dealing with hordes of overly enthusiastic 20-somethings who are mostly 'mad for it'.

Sean, an ex-estate agent from southeast London, is more experienced, this being his third year as a holiday rep. He knows the lows of the lifestyle, having been beaten up and put in a hospital after a street brawl in the nearby town of San Antonio last year. 'It was nothing to do with the job though,' he says. 'I never really get stressed.

You've got your life yeah? If you're going to get stressed, what's the point?' Sean reckons flexibility and a thick skin are the two chief qualities needed for the job.

Lack of fear would be another, if the next game is anything to go by. As many tourists as possible are packed into a baby swimming pool and arms aloft, they play 'Catch the Rep'. This involves the rep taking a flying jump into a sea of arms and hoping no one requires hospitalisation at the end of it.

A friendly acquaintance with the island's doctors is obligatory though, as Liz Wilkes, 22, from Wiltshire, also on her third season, confirms: 'I had a lad who took 15 pills and I had to beg him to go to the doctors, and I've had clients coming off mopeds and losing a lot of skin. I hate that bit.'

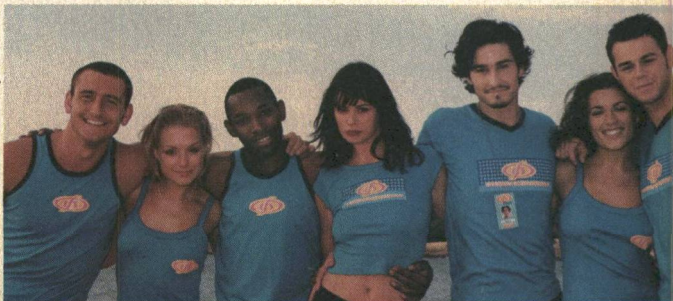

Liz became a rep when she got bored at university, picked up a travel brochure and realised she couldn't afford a holiday. 'My parents think I'm out here to doss, but they support me anyway. Maybe with this programme they'll see there's a lot of responsibility involved too.'

As dozens of more-than-slightly squiffy holiday-makers move unsteadily back onto the boat, you can see what she means. CC

Wild things

Girls just want to have fun, so the female cast members of Is Harry on the Boat? tell Garth Pearce

They're young, they're single and they're wild. The girls in the new film Is Harry on the Boat? don't take any prisoners. The Sky Pictures production, based on Colin Butts' best-selling novel about a group of reps, was made on location last year, and proves girls know how to party when it comes to fun in the sun.

Davinia Taylor, who plays bitchy travel rep boss Alison, took the scenes in her stride: 'I love playing the cow,' she says, 'that comes naturally to me. So I just threw myself into it.'

'I started to have second thoughts, though, when it came to me wearing a black leather bikini and doing things I would never dream of doing myself.'

Kate Magowan, the former Dream Team star, knows the dialogue may be criticised. But looking back to a holiday she went on when she was 17, she says 'We went wild for a week.'

Hawaii is a popular holiday destination, but its unique animal and plant life needs to be protected, as Sally O'Shaughnessy discovers

Preserving paradise

Hawaii – a tropical haven far removed from the rest of the world in the middle of the Pacific ocean. With exquisite flora and fauna, awesome surf, beautiful beaches and a dramatic history, it's everyone's idea of paradise. But behind the picture-postcard image, there's a hidden Hawaii.

A new Discovery Extreme documentary, filmed over the course of a year, reveals that the Hawaiian islands are ecologically unique to the world. And, away from the tourists, there are islanders whose lives are entwined with this precious and dramatic environment.

Nestling on top of the East rift zone, one of Earth's most active volcanic hot spots, is Hawaii's birth place. Such was the force of an eruption 60 million years ago that Hawaii's mountains reach up to 4000 metres.

One of the documentary's subjects is Steve Lang, a sculptor whose life and work revolves around Hawaii's Kilauea volcano. Living 19km from the volcano's lava flow on the main island of Hawaii, Steve risks life and limb to create what he describes as 'vessels' from the lava.

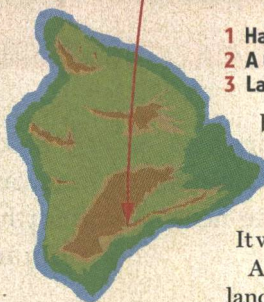

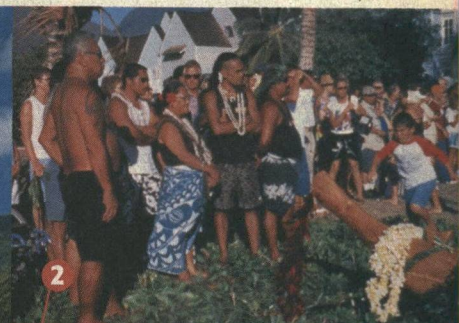

Far from being frightened, Steve finds the volcanic region, where he has made his home for the last 18 years, 'sweet and soft' and enjoys the lava's erratic nature. 'It's got its own voice,' he explains, 'and I work with that. It's like surfing. You just have to go, go, go.' He admits to a few near misses. 'I've taken some mighty spills, burned myself a lot and I've lost many possessions.'

In spite of the danger, Steve is reverential about the volcano. 'I can understand why the ancient Hawaiians deified it. They believed Pele, a mythological Hawaiian goddess, was the source of the volcano. I honour that force at some level.'

Such ancient native traditions and beliefs are at the heart of a new movement on the island to preserve the unique plant and animal life. Art Medierson, a research biologist with the Maui Invasive Species Committee (MISC), whose work is also featured in the programme, explains: 'Because of the islands' isolation and elevation, a unique array of plant and animal life evolved. Very few things got here. Explosive speciation occurred. Sibling species grew one right next to another and each was very distinct. Hawaiian people have gone through a renaissance about this natural heritage. The plants and animals that were used in cultural senses have greater importance today.'

He continues: 'When Hawaiians

- 1 Hamoa Beach
- 2 A traditional ceremony in Maui
- 3 Lava flows into the ocean at Kalapana began to try to make traditional canoes again, they found they couldn't find native trees large enough to make them.

It was a sign.'

Although it is the dramatic landscape that has so enthralled inhabitants and visitors alike, it is man who is threatening to destroy it. Currently top of the MISC's list of non-native destructive species is the Myconia tree. A luscious purple plant from the neo-tropics, which was first introduced to Tahiti by a well-intentioned American in the 1930s, Myconia has since almost completely displaced that Pacific island's indigenous rainforest.

It is an invasion that Medierson and the dedicated committee to which he belongs are determined will not be repeated. 'It's a lot like a military campaign,' he admits. 'It involves aerial surveys, helicopters to deliver herbicide and quick response teams.'

'There's an ever quickening drum beat to all this. Before humans got here, plants used to arrive every 30,000 years. Now currently a new plant arrives every six days. That's caused a catastrophic disbalance and we're determined to draw the line.' cg

LETTER OF THE MONTH

In a spin for Charlie

I have always enjoyed Spin City, and also have much admiration for Michael J Fox, not just for his positive attitude towards Parkinson's disease, but for his excellent performance in the show. I was sad to read that he had decided to leave Spin City, he was perfect as the deputy mayor and it was my opinion he could never be replaced. I couldn't have been more wrong! Charlie Sheen [pictured with Heather Locklear] provides a fresh and positive outlook to the show; he's original, witty, highly entertaining and, not to mention, extremely good looking. Well done, Charlie, and I hope the show gets the ratings it deserves.

Jane Pickering, Shropshire

Congratulations, Jane. You have won the £50 prize for writing this month's star letter!

SO LONG, SEINFELD

In the May issue of Cable Guide I checked Sky One's listings to see when the last few Seinfeld episodes would be aired. The answer: they're not, it seems. The last four episodes – the two-part Clip Show and the two-part Finale – seem to have been forgotten about, discarded, or lost.

The series got off to a good start ... for about four or five weeks. Then it was put on hiatus for a month or so before starting up from the beginning again. And, on top of all this, it's had at least two different evenings (Tuesdays and Saturdays, and maybe Sundays) and God only knows how many time slots!

I'd really appreciate knowing what the situation is with this show. It has the worst treatment of almost anything on TV (with the possible exceptions of Chicago Hope and The Practice). And it's pretty much the biggest show the US has ever made! What's going on?!

David Tombesi-Walton, e-mail

You'll be pleased to hear (if you don't mind staying up into the wee small hours) that The Clip Show (Parts I and II) can be seen on Saturday 7th at 1.30am, and The Finale (Parts I and II) can be seen on Sunday 8th at 1.00am.

BEWITCHING MUSIC

Congratulations to everyone who had a hand in making the fabulous series Charmed, winner of Favourite Sci-Fi/Fantasy Series at the Cable Guide Awards this year. I have seen every episode and wouldn't miss it, but in doing so I have grown to love the title song. I have a feeling the original was done by Morrissey, but I prefer this version. Can you tell me who sings it and if I can buy it?

Dot Jackson, e-mail

The Charmed theme song, How Soon is Now?, is performed by Love Split Love (and co-written by Morrissey). The song appeared in the 1996 film The Craft and is available from all good record shops on the soundtrack. The third series of Charmed is replaying on Living this month, and Living will confirm later this year about the fourth series, which is due to be filmed in the States.

POKÉMON POTTY!

Ahhhhh, I'm going mad, I tell you! Why hasn't Sky One put the new episodes of Pokémon on lately? It was OK when they started, but about five episodes in to the new ones they stopped. What's gone wrong?

Damien Mee (aged 11), e-mail

Sky One informs us that more than half the episodes from series three of Pokémon have been shown, but, rest assured, the others will be screened from this autumn.

THE ROSWELL FACTOR

Thank you to Sky One for showing the second series of Roswell. My friends and I really enjoy it. Will the first series be shown again, as I missed the first few episodes and really want to see them?

'I would like to congratulate the Sci-Fi channel on some excellent shows that have been aired ... Space Above and Beyond especially!'

Hopefully, Sky One will be able to as it's a great show and Sky One is a great channel.

Laura, e-mail

Sky One says the first series will be repeated, so stay tuned for air dates. And don't miss the gripping season finale on Wednesday 11th at 8.00pm!

TO DIE FOR

I watched Do or Die on Sky One in April and I thought it was brilliant. I especially like the actor Tom Long who played Michael Tyler. Will it be repeated? I think Tom Long is gorgeous. Do you have any information on him?

Sam Fulcher, e-mail

Sky One informs us that Do or Die will indeed be repeated, so keep an eye out for further details. Apart from a number of Australian TV and stage shows, Tom Long has also appeared in the 1999 film Two Hands, with Heath Ledger, and most recently starred as Glenn Latham in the film The Dish. He co-stars in a film due for release at the end of this year called Hildegard, with Richard E Grant.

FANTASTIC FRANK

I enjoy The Frank Skinner Show on Paramount Comedy Channel, but the same episodes have been continually shown for the past year! When is Paramount going to show the new series, with guests like Noel Gallagher?

Andrew Sharp, Wigan

Paramount Comedy Channel informs us that they only own the rights to the first three series of Frank Skinner's show. Mr Gallagher features in series four, which Paramount hopes to show later this year.

SCI-FI-TASTIC

I would like to congratulate the Sci-Fi channel on some excellent shows that have been aired recently – Earth 2 and Space Above and Beyond especially! I am a big fan of both series, and thank Sci-Fi for this excellent viewing.

Kirk McGrath, e-mail

SPOILT FOR CHOICE

The month of May was probably the best yet; from sports to movies to cartoons. I am a huge fan of animation and since Dragonball Z (Cartoon Network) started, new Cardcaptors (Nickelodeon) and the anime offerings on Sci-Fi, it is all just too much for me – but all worth it. Cable should be called 'spoilt for choice'. Thanks and keep it up.

Mamzi, e-mail

AS THE BELL TOLLS

I would like to congratulate Nickelodeon for showing Saved by the Bell again. I had forgotten all about it until they showed it. I have just one query: does Nickelodeon have any plans to show The College Years or the movies?

Rachael Smith, e-mail

Nickelodeon tells us that these won't be airing at present as the rights to The College Years and the films are not available until next year. But watch this space for updates!

ALL EYES ON DARK ANGEL

I was reading in the June issue that there may not be a second series of Dark Angel. Along with Buffy and Angel this is one of my favourite shows and it will be greatly missed. I was wondering if Sky One will be repeating the series in the future.

Amanda Shelton, e-mail

A new series of the award-winning Dark Angel will indeed be made in the States, but details of its transmission on Sky One are as yet unconfirmed. Further repeats of the series are also likely on Sky One.

LEAVE VH1 ALONE!

I do not like the new look VH1. Too many of the videos being shown are contemporary. VH1 now looks too much like MTV.

Brian Collins, Leeds

THE SURREAL SIMPSONS

As a Simpsons fan, I am rather concerned with the quality of the new episodes. The Simpson family are involved in more surreal situations each week. Characters like Chief Wiggum [pictured below] have often entertained me, but now they barely make an appearance in the show. Has there been a change in writers of the show, or was this intended? Congratulations, however, to Sky One for their unrivalled coverage of The Simpsons, which has provided me with many hours of entertainment.

Samuel Edwards, Chelmsford

LONG LIVE BUFFY

The series finale of Buffy the Vampire Slayer was great. It's the best show in the world! I've heard a rumour that season six starts in October – could you please confirm this?

Daniel Lumley, e-mail

Sky One replies: 'It certainly was an earth-shattering episode! Glad to hear you enjoyed it, and look out for the next series, which will most likely be playing on Sky One at the beginning of next year.'

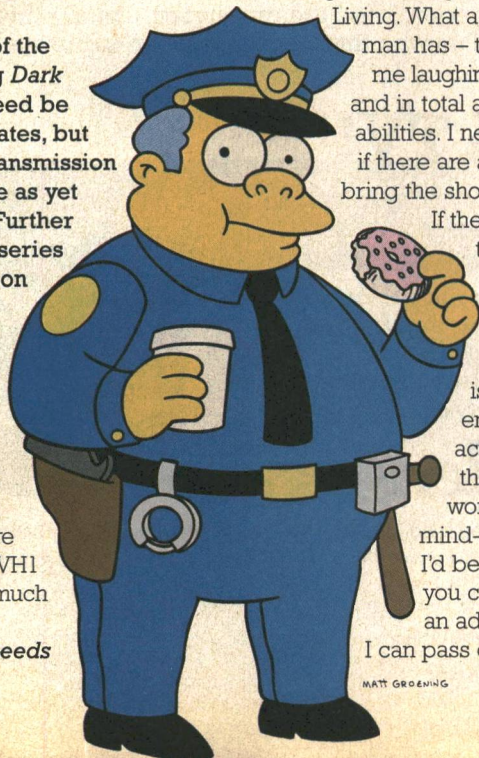

OVER THE MOON WITH JOHN

I am writing to tell you that I am completely, utterly, hopelessly, one hundred per cent hooked on Crossing Over with John Edward on Living. What a talent this man has – the show has me laughing and crying and in total awe of his abilities. I need to know if there are any plans to bring the show to London.

If there is, I insist that I am top of the list for tickets, as to watch the show on TV is compelling enough, but to actually witness this man at work must be mind-blowing. I'd be grateful if you could give me an address where

I can pass on my utter

MATT GROENING

'The series finale of Buffy the Vampire Slayer was great. It's the best show in the world! I've heard a rumour that season six starts in October' admiration to the great man himself?

Sally Cope, e-mail

Living is looking to bring the well-known American psychic John Edward over to the UK in the near future and says that viewers will be kept informed on the Living website, www.livingtv.co.uk. You can write to John in America via Sixth Avenue Productions, 423 West 58th Street, 3rd Floor, New York, NY 10019, USA.

STARS OF THE SCREEN

The Stargate SG-1 episodes on Sky One have been fab so far, but I would love to know if there are any plans for a convention in the UK. Also, is there a fan mail address I could have? Thanks again, Sky One, for an excellent series.

Tracey Rush, e-mail

Sky One is currently showing repeats of season four of this epic science fiction series, Mondays at 9.00pm, and fans can look forward to the brand new fifth series on Sky One in the autumn.

We are not aware of any plans for a Stargate SG-1 convention in the UK. But for more information on the series take a look at the official Stargate website at www.stargate-sg1.com.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Welcome to your new-look Cable Guide! The team have been working on the redesign for a long time and hope you like it as much as we do. With a new Front Row guide, easy-to-navigate listings and sport at the back, plus regular features and columnists, it's definitely stepped into the 21st century. July's an exciting month to launch the fresh feel as summer's in full swing and there's a Party in the Park! The two big Front Row premieres this month are Kevin & Perry Go Large and The Patriot; check out both features in your Film Guide. Ibiza's the place to be if you fancy some fun in the sun – see how the holiday reps keep up the pace. I look forward to hearing what you think of your Cable Guide.

American cars were once status symbols. But as our friends across the Atlantic celebrate Independence Day, Vicki says a definite Yanks but no Yanks to the latest breed of gas-guzzlers from the US

UK HORIZONS

Catch Vicki Butler-Henderson in Top Gear GTi on UK Horizons, see listings for details

July the fourth. Independence Day. Just an excuse for a good knees-up, if you ask me. But why not? It certainly gets my approval.

But while Americans go about celebrating their independence, Europeans can celebrate superior motor cars.

But it wasn't always like that. American cars were once held in high regard. Indeed, people even lusted after them. Cadillac and Chevrolet were not only physically big machines, they also had a big following too. Many people on both sides of the pond dreamed of owning one of these. They were truly aspirational automobiles.

The US produced striking cars with massive engines, pointy boot fins and sharp, spiky headlights, while the UK had to make do with tin-pot tiddlers.

Today, it's European cars that lead the way. BMW, Mercedes, Porsche – three admittedly top-notch manufacturers who make some fantastic cars, which not only look good, but are solidly built, handle well and come with loads of luxuries.

Yank tanks, on the other hand, are just that – tanks.

On the whole they're near-shapeless to look at, they're too wobbly to throw round a bend with any sense of safety and they take their fuel intravenously.

Most of our motors are fitted with a five-speed manual gearbox – but automatics rule Stateside. If you've ever been to the States, then you can understand why – seemingly constant traffic jams are not fun when you're pumping a clutch all the time. But autos aren't fun if you like to drive.

The only similarity between US and European motors is the high level of standard equipment. Air conditioning, electric windows, central locking and the like are now common place on the majority of mass-produced models.

It is a shame, though, that the American motors don't share the excellent handling and ride qualities of the majority of ours. To me, a racing-like chassis, really positive steering and a smooth but powerful engine are the qualities of a terrific car. And the likes of BMW and Porsche deliver just that.

A large engine is all very well, but when it is put into an American body that pitches and rolls round every bend, then it's just not nice. In fact, the only nice thing about a modern-day American car is the price. Now, if we could only adopt their prices and they could adopt Europe's knowledge of making proper drivers' cars, then we'd all have something to celebrate on July the fourth. cg

Ross Burden

Grab the family, pack up your hamper and enjoy a delightful summer picnic. Ross has plenty of ideas to make it extra special, and you can forget the cold quiche and sausages

UK STYLE

Catch Ross cooking up a storm in Ready Steady Cook, Thursday 26th, 6.00pm

If you go down to the woods today, don't be at all surprised if you're joined, not by teddy bears, but by millions of other Britons – eating outside has become a huge trend.

Bold flavours are best in the sun. When I was a student, we had a huge garden with enough apple trees to sit under and we often lunched outdoors. Being close to a fridge, we often ate seafood and fruit. But if you're packing a picnic, pack a punch too.

The thermos needn't be for tea alone – cold gazpacho is wizard in the heat of the sun, as is cold leek and potato soup. A chilled salad of fennel and celeriac, bound with a horseradish mayonnaise, is great in a wide-mouth thermos and works brilliantly with smoked salmon; add lemon wedges, brown bread and you're off.

Of course, you can buy everything you need for a brilliant packed lunch from your local supermarket – but you can do much better than a few cold sausages and a slice of quiche. Half the delight of a good picnic is kids running around having fun. But what to pack for them?

If you have plenty of time you can be very clever with coloured jellies, placing appropriately coloured fruits in jelly, letting it set and repeating with a different colour or two. Turned out and sliced, it's a brilliant summery pudding. In the same way, you can scoop out oranges and set jelly in them or make homemade ice lollies using fruit juices, rather than sugar.

Trying to get kids to eat green vegetables can be very difficult, but they can be disguised effectively. You can make chicken sausages out of chicken mince with herbs and roll the mixture around an asparagus spear, crumb and cook – they'll never know that chlorophyll's breached their defences.

Sandwiches with their favourite fillings can be more interesting if cut into shapes, like teddy bears or stars. They stay unsoggy if you line the bread with a lettuce leaf – also providing something a little healthy.

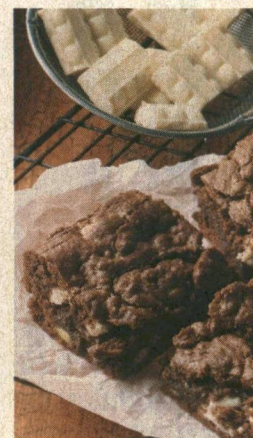

If you don't fancy making sarnies, why not give the kids a select-a-pizza option? Take rounds of buttered bread and fillings and they can make their own combinations. Open sandwiches to us; pizzas to them.

If you're not going far, it's always fun to make up plates of food and wrap them in red and white napkins, which can then be used as mini picnic blankets. Plenty of liquid, of course, is essential while in the sun, and freezing drinks (not in glass bottles or cans) so they slowly melt is ideal; but if you freeze fizzy drinks, they'll thaw flat.

Although healthy eating is a watchword, it's always good to have a treat as well, so pack these great brownies (right) and slowly turn yourself into tanned treats too.

Wicked chocolate brownies

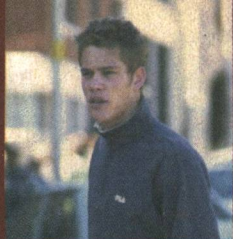

MAKES 12

145g butter at room temperature
200g caster sugar
2 eggs
115g plain flour
85g cocoa powder
55g pecans
100g white chocolate, in small pieces

Preheat the oven to 150°C and grease a 25cm x 15cm baking tin with butter, then line with paper and grease again. Cream the butter and sugar, and beat in the eggs. Mix in the flour and sifted cocoa. Fold in the nuts and white chocolate pieces. Turn the mixture into the tin and spread out to the sides. Bake for 40 minutes for a gooey texture or 50 minutes for a firmer result. Cut in the tin while still hot and remove when cool.

These are great with ice cream or crème fraîche.

Kippers ahoy! Welcome to my page

Hello, I'm Kip, and I'm going to be showing you what's hot on cable TV every month.

What's more, I want to hear from you! So, write to Kip's postbag, Cable Guide, PO BOX 2176, London W1A 5TW interview

I name this page ...

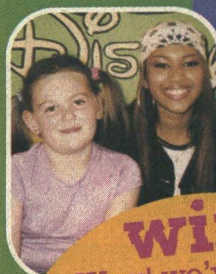

There's something different about the kids' page this month – it's no longer Power Cable. Thanks to seven-year-old Lauren Chance (pictured above, and below with singer Lisa Roxanne), it has been newly named Kip.

'I enter a lot of competitions, but this is the first that I've won,' says Lauren, revealing the name came to her in a flash of inspiration.

To show our appreciation, Cable Guide sent Lauren, her sister and her mum on a VIP trip to the Disney Channel Live Studios in London.

'I met all the presenters and the lunch was delicious!'

You deserve it, Lauren!

Quime quacking

As Miss Mallard waddles onto Nickelodeon this month, Kip gets the lowdown on the queen-beak of deducktion.

Why did you want to become a ducktective?
Oh, simply because it's such quacking good fun!

Have you influenced your nephew, Inspector Willard Widgeon, in his career?
Oh, I expect so, don't you? I am quackers about him – and I couldn't solve these mysteries without him.

Has there really never been a case you couldn't quack?

When my great friend El Ducko was suspected of stealing a masterpiece, it was hard work proving his innocence and catching the true villain. But no, there's never been a case I couldn't quack.

What is the greatest skill a crime-fighter can have?

Over the years I have learnt to use whatever objects I have around me to make whatever use of them I can, including my wings. But one of the greatest skills a ducktective can have is to never quack up under pressure.

How will you be spending July?

Hopefully in a pond somewhere hot and sunny – maybe with a good book! cg

Wow! we've got a Roadwork's backstage pass for one reader (for a venue of their choice), plus 10 goody bags to give away, containing a kite, frisbee, beach bag and hat.

To enter, name Dexter's sister. Answers on a postcard with your name and address to: Cable Guide/Cartoon Roadwork competition, PO Box 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first 11 correct entries drawn at random will win. Closes 21 July 2001. Full rules on page 20.

Roadworks ahead

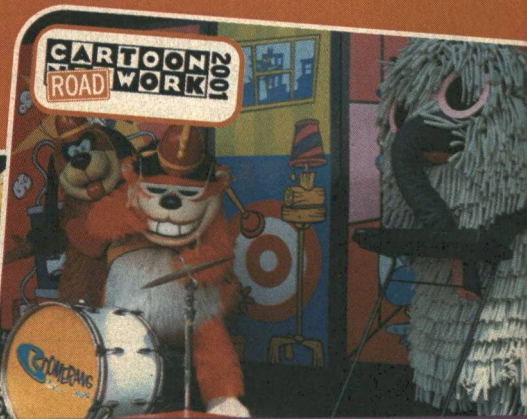

Phew, what a scorcher! There's a sizzling show heading your way in the shape of Cartoon Roadwork 2001 – a live 45-minute show, involving games, competitions and prizes. Pop along to one of the five daily shows and you could find yourself on stage playing the Scooby Snack game, dressing up as Hong Kong Phooey or getting Mum or Dad to sing karaoke.

Dexter (from Dexter's Laboratory) and the Powerpuff Girls will be hosting the show with Chris Jarvis of Fully Booked fame. 'I'm particularly looking forward to Dexter's game,' says Chris. 'It will involve lots of test tubes and atoms, but his horrible sister Dee Dee won't be there.'

'If it rains during the roadshow, we'll do the show anyway – the games work whatever the weather. But I've spoken to a weather forecaster friend and he says the summer is supposed to be quite good.' Fingers crossed!

Cartoon Roadwork 2001 dates are:
St Helens Show, Liverpool, 28-29 July

Oscars, Golden Globes, Grammys, MTV Music Awards and VH1 Fashion Awards – you name it, Madonna has won it several times over. But, believe it or not, before Madge became one of the most successful singer-songwriters of all time, she had several not-so-glam jobs, including a stint behind a Dunkin' Donuts counter, which only goes to show how diverse the queen of pop's career has really been. But don't take my word for it. As the UK leg of Madonna's world tour begins, VH1 and MTV pay homage to the legend that is Madonna.

VH1 kicks off with Madonna Week (Monday 2nd to Friday 6th), featuring a Behind the Music: Madonna, Top 40 Madonna, a Pop-Up video special and Video Timeline, which profiles Madonna's career with as many embarrassing old photos as possible.

MTV's Madonna Weekend (Saturday 8th and Sunday 9th) continues the madness. There's videos galore in Madonna: Her Story in Music and Videoclash: Madonna Special. Then there's FANatic, in which Madonna faces her biggest fans and interviews in Bytesize Madonna.

And remember, the next time you're in Dunkin' Donuts you might just find the Madonna of a new generation is serving you! cg

Madonna and her many faces will be on VH1 and MTV this month, but here's a sneak preview

Lazy, messy, mean and selfish – some people have some pretty annoying habits, but Trouble's going to sort out a few of the culprits. With its new reality game show, Cruel Summer, 12 contestants, aged 18 to 22, will be put through their paces for such crimes as snogging their mate's girlfriend.

Nominated by fed-up friends or family, and selected from a shortlist of 24 by Trouble viewers this month (details at www.trouble.co.uk), the dirty dozen will be taken to a Scottish castle to mend their ways in four weeks over August.

As an incentive, they will be given £3000, but each day they'll lose £100. The only way to keep their pennies is to win challenges or be voted off by Trouble viewers. The winner will also bag a world trip.

'The contestants aren't allowed to take much with them – no TV or radio, only 25kg of clothing and five personal items,' says

Don't miss Cruel Summer,
on Trouble,
weekdays from 30th, 5.00pm

the show's host, sassy Sarah Cawood, who also presents Live and Kicking.

'If I was a contestant I'd take a big jumper, wellies, some combats, a mac and a brolly. And for my five personal items I'd take an item of make-up, an aromatherapy candle, a cuddly bear, a good book and a multi-pack of crisps.'

With cash at stake you can expect the tension to be running high. Contestants will be at loggerheads over challenges, like the Vow of Silence, something chatterbox Sarah admits she'd find difficult. 'I'm not a malicious gossip,' she adds, 'I just talk too much.'

What Sarah's most looking forward to is being in the castle: 'I'm going to feel like a kid – like when you went to a big house and all you wanted to do was play hide-and-seek.'

Let the games begin! cg

TEMPUR® - the material that moulds to your body

We spend about a third of our lives asleep, and yet how many of us invest properly in revitalising our bodies during that time?

On a TEMPUR® Mattress the nightmare of restless nights and waking stiff and unrested soon becomes a thing of the past. Unlike any other mattress, the TEMPUR® is made from a unique pressure-relieving material that truly adapts to your body rather than asking your body to conform to it.

By distributing your weight evenly, the TEMPUR® Mattress decreases pressure at trouble spots like the shoulders, hips, knees and ankles as well as giving support to the neck and back.

Clinical trials show that the TEMPUR® Mattress reduces tossing and turning during the night by 80% compared to a typical pocket spring or latex mattress - because blood flow is not restricted.

China girl

A fascinating journey through China helped the Disney animation team bring the popular legend of Mulan to life. Hilary Bonner meets the men behind the movie

The creative team behind Disney's blockbuster film Mulan made an incredible journey across China to research the ancient story.

'We actually followed in Mulan's footsteps,' explains Mark Henn, the man who created the animated version of the Chinese icon for the film.

According to legend, and the film, Mulan is a young woman faced with the terrible prospect of her brave but ailing father being killed in battle. The situation has occurred because an Imperial Army has to be gathered to meet the threat of invasion by the villainous Hun leader Shan-Yu, and as the only male member of his family, Mulan's father unhesitatingly steps forward to meet his obligation to fight.

Mulan is distraught. She knows he will not survive. So she decides to defy tradition and take her father's place in the army. She daringly disguises herself as a man, shaving her hair and donning her father's battle armour, and tries hard to look and sound as macho as she can.

Then she sets out on her faithful horse, Khan, accompanied by a feisty, fire-breathing guardian dragon called Mushu, to join up - adopting the name Ping.

Says Mark: 'In order for the film to capture the true spirit of Mulan we wanted to see the mountains and the temples she would have seen, to be able almost to visualise her riding by on her horse, and most of all to meet the Chinese people. Everywhere we went, everybody knew her story.'

'They would give us a big smile and say "Ah, Mulan".'

'We sat down with a professor, an expert on Mulan, who gave us a list of attributes she should have. She should, of course, be very attractive, she should be very strong, she should love her family very much, be very respectful of tradition and have a positive attitude.'

'We travelled to areas where it was most likely that Mulan had lived; Beijing, up to the Mongolian border and the Gobi Desert.

'A lot of Chinese believe totally that Mulan actually existed and we even met people who said that they had found her grave.'

The Disney team spent a total of three weeks in China. They visited galleries and museums, sketched landscapes, foliage and architecture, and actually stood on both ends of the Great Wall. They were determined to correctly portray the images and customs that they found there.

Art director Ric Sluiter says of the trip: 'When we went to China we discovered that there was a softness and an atmosphere to everything. We tried to capture that.'

The filmmakers studied the graphic style of Chinese art and more than anything, they tried to recreate the feel of Chinese silk paintings, their spontaneity and simplicity, on film.

Nearly 700 Disney artists, animators and technicians worked on Mulan and the film is an extraordinary mix of ancient myth and state of the art modern technology.

A computer software programme called Atilla was specially created for the sequence in which 2,000 Hun soldiers on horseback cascade through a mountain pass. A variation of that programme, named Dynasty, enabled the animators to bring to big screen life an extraordinary crowd of 30,000 for the film's powerful finale.

Computer-generated imagery was used to create 17 different animated elements throughout the film. These include the gently swaying bamboo, flaming arrows, munitions carts, a multitude of colourful banners, the dragon incense burner which transforms into the character of Mushu and nearly 7000 lit lanterns dispersed through the crowd.

Unsurprisingly, the scale of the film attracted superstar status actors as the voices of the principal characters.

Miss Saigon star Lea Salonga is the singing voice of Mulan, while Donny Osmond sings on behalf of the dashing young Captain Shang, and Eddie Murphy (Dr Dolittle, The Nutty Professor) breathes life and laughter into pint-sized guardian dragon Mushu.

'We wanted to see the mountains and the temples she would have seen'

Up up and away...

WIN! Disney Channel's unencrypted* Massive Movie Weekend (Saturday 21st to Monday 23rd) allows cable customers who don't normally subscribe to Disney Channel the chance to enjoy a weekend of family viewing. The weekend not only includes the British television premiere of the acclaimed animated movie Mulan, on Sunday 22nd at 4.00pm, it also features a medley of other top movies: Inspector Gadget, Hercules, The Parent Trap, Pocahontas II, as well as An Extremely Goofy Movie.

Here's your chance to experience an adventure all of your own!

To celebrate the premiere of Mulan, Disney Channel is offering you the chance to take the ride of a lifetime!

One lucky winner will take three friends and a parent or guardian on an amazing hot-air balloon trip with Merlin Balloons over the Kent countryside, taking in the beautiful sights of the 'Garden of England' on a day that you can choose. All your travel costs are included in this unique day out.

To be in with a chance of scooping this top prize, just answer this question:

Which blockbusting movie makes its British TV premiere on Disney Channel this month?

a) The Parent Trap b) Hercules c) Mulan

Calls cost 60p per minute. Likely duration two minutes. Please ask permission from the bill payer before calling. Postal entries also accepted, with name, address and daytime telephone number, to Cable Guide/ Mulan competition, PO BOX 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first correct entry drawn at random will win. Send a bear and show you care

WIN! Do you find buying gifts for friends and relatives a bore, a chore, or both? For most of us it's always the same story – flowers for women and aftershave for men. But now you can change the habit of a lifetime and put a smile on your loved ones' faces with something different – a personalised teddy bear.

We've teamed up with the Telegram Teddy Company to offer 50 lucky readers the chance to design and send a personalised teddy bear for any occasion.

There are over 30 bears in the Telegram Teddy range, including pregnant bears for mums-to-be, wedding bears for those preparing to walk down the aisle and shopaholic bears for those who can't do without their retail therapy.

All bears are handcrafted, stand 15in tall and are delivered overnight in specially designed gift boxes anywhere in the UK. You can even embroider a name or message onto the bear's outfit.

Great value for money, a Telegram Teddy costs between £20-£35, which is certainly less than the price of a dozen red roses and they're destined to last forever – unlike the flowers.

To enter, name the famous marmalade-loving bear from Darkest Peru, created by Michael Bond

THE PATRIOT

MEL GIBSON, HEATH LEDGER

158 MINS PREMIERE

The team (Roland Emmerich and Dean Devlin) that orchestrated the alien invasion spectacular Independence Day and the monster mash of Godzilla turn their attentions to history for a stirring epic of the American War of Independence. Mel Gibson is on top brave-hearted form as the family man farmer roused to avenging warrior when King George III's redcoats start behaving like 18th-century Nazis in South Carolina. The Patriot is a film not exactly designed to endear itself to British audiences (Jason Isaacs' dastardly, massacre-ordering British officer is only modestly balanced by Tom Wilkinson's gentlemanly General Cornwallis). But this is nonetheless terrific, cinematic stuff that delivers big emotional moments of tragedy, valour and love along with its absolutely stunning battle sequences. Young Australian actor Heath Ledger (10 Things I Hate About You) cuts a dash as Gibson's fervent revolutionary son, while Mel proves he is still undisputably 'The Man', and is unrivalled as a battlefield hero. See page 43 for our Mel Gibson story.

BATS

LOU DIAMOND PHILLIPS, DINA MEYER
88 MINS

Lou Diamond Phillips is the small-town sheriff who finds himself battling genetically mutated killer bats after a government experiment goes wrong. Scientist babe Dina Meyer (Starship Troopers) lends a hand in an enjoyable 'eek!' experience, which has been made for fans of berserk creature features such as The Birds, The Swarm, Piranha and Arachnophobia.

BIG MOMMA'S HOUSE

MARTIN LAWRENCE
98 MINS PREMIERE

FBI agent Martin Lawrence (left) does an Eddie Murphy, getting his knickers in a twist, finding romance and hurling himself into cross-dressing antics when he has to go undercover on a stake out, impersonating a fat, cantankerous, Southern granny who is known as Big Momma. There are lowbrow laughs galore.

CHICKEN RUN

Voices of MEL GIBSON, JULIA SAWALHA, JANE HORROCKS 81 MINS

The Great Escape is the deliciously absurd inspiration for the ultimate chick flick. A wacky, witty and exciting animated feature in which plucky hen Ginger (Julia Sawalha) hatches a daring plan for a mass breakout by the poultry prisoners on a chicken farm. But can she rely on cocky Yank rooster Rocky (Mel Gibson on comic form as the crowing Lone 'Free' Ranger) to do his bit when farmer's wife Mrs Tweedy (Miranda Richardson) installs a lethal weapon – a giant chicken pie-making machine?

CHILL FACTOR

CUBA GOODING JR, SKEET ULRICH, PETER FIRTH 98 MINS

In a variation on the Speed premise, an ice-cream van driver (Cuba Gooding Jr) and a drifter (Skeet Ulrich) are instructed by a dying scientist to transport a volatile chemical weapon to an army base. The chemical will blow sky high unless they keep it below 50°F. Cue a race against time, pursuing heavies and rising temperatures! A silly but enjoyable thriller.

CIRCUS

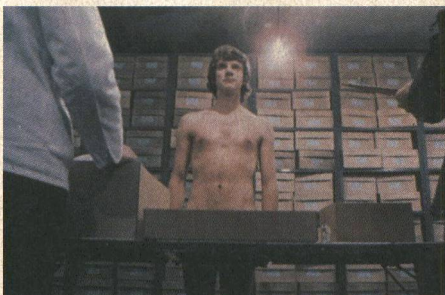

JOHN HANNAH, FAMKE JANSSEN
92 MINS PREMIERE

British crime comedy of con artists Leo and Lily (Hannah and Janssen), who plan a last scam to finance a luxury retirement but are up against Brighton gangsters (led by Brian Conley!), vicious loan shark Eddie Izzard (above) and vengeful foreign mystery man Peter Stormare.

A CLOCKWORK ORANGE

MALCOLM McDOWELL, PATRICK MAGEE
131 MINS PREMIERE

Stanley Kubrick's most controversial film, made in 1971 and withdrawn after its initial release in the UK by the director himself for nearly 30 years, is still an electrifying adaptation of the Anthony Burgess novel. Delinquent youth Alex (Malcolm McDowell, above) gets his kicks from Beethoven, and leading his 'droogs', or gang (including a baby-faced Warren Clark), on rampages of 'ultra-violence'. But the institutionalised brutality that ensues in Alex's punishment and rehabilitation is just as scary in this scathing satire of society's hypocrisy, corruption and sadism. Kubrick's arresting vision is amusingly dated in details, but the picture of aimless louts alleviating their boredom in mindless viciousness is chillingly topical. Sensationally stylish and highly stylised, this cult classic packs more punch than its imitators – of which there are many. See page 49 for Kim Newman's analysis of A Clockwork Orange.

DECEPTION

BEN AFFLECK, GARY SINISE
101 MINS PREMIERE

Cynical ex-con Rudy (Ben Affleck) keeps a rendezvous with his cell mate's sexpot pen-friend Charliz Theron, only to be coerced into a Christmas Eve casino heist by the duplicitous dame and her evil brother (Sinise). Action, twists and a pile-up of dead Santas, courtesy of celebrated thriller veteran John Frankenheimer.

DEUCE BIGALOW: MALE GIGOLO

ROB SCHNEIDER, WILLIAM FORSYTHE
85 MINS PREMIERE

American TV funnyman Schneider stars in a knockabout comedy co-executive produced by Adam Sandler. He's a hapless fish tank cleaner, house-sitting disastrously for a suave male escort when his desperate need for cash prompts him to try the gigolo business himself.

DRIVE ME CRAZY

MELISSA JOAN HART, ADRIAN GRENIER
88 MINS

TV's highly popular Sabrina the Teenage Witch, Melissa Joan Hart, stars in a teen romantic comedy as a perky-but-serious high school princess whose prom date schemes backfire when she's stuck with the grungy rebel boy next door (cute Adrian Grenier). He, of course, turns out way better than she thought. Feel-good fun.

ERIN BROCKOVICH

JULIA ROBERTS, ALBERT FINNEY
126 MINS

If you need proof that Julia Roberts is more than a great pair of legs and that famous smile, here it is with her Oscar-winning performance in the true story of a working-class woman who took on a major corporation for poisoning a town's water supply and won. Inspiring, funny and moving, Steven Soderbergh's film is a winner all the way. Single mum Erin is way down on her luck when she fast-talks her way into a job at a law firm. There, her curiosity and can-do spirit find a cause – a small town with a horrific incidence of cancer – in which her understanding and sympathy for victims turn her into the champion of an impassioned crusade that would make legal history. This is a splendidly sassy and real character piece for Roberts, but it's all first-class, including Albert Finney as Erin's exasperated boss and Aaron Eckhart as her biker boyfriend. It's a captivating performance – and her saucy wardrobe is an eyeful, too.

We have 10 Erin Brockovich CD soundtracks to give away. To be in with a chance of winning a copy, simply answer the following question:

Who directed Erin Brockovich?

Send your answer on a postcard, with name and address, to Cable Guide/Brockovich competition, PO Box 2176, London W1A 5TW. The first 10 correct entries drawn at random will win. Closing date 31 July 2001. Full Cable Guide competition rules on page 20.

FOR LOVE OF THE GAME

KEVIN COSTNER, KELLY PRESTON
133 MINS PREMIERE

Costner returns to the baseball field for a handsome, emotionally satisfying drama about a pro athlete, in the twilight of his career and on the verge of losing the woman he loves, thinking back over his choices and mistakes, while pitching in the last game of the season.

GLADIATOR

RUSSELL CROWE, JOAQUIN PHOENIX, CONNIE NIELSEN 149 MINS

The sword-and-sandal epic stages a comeback in Ridley Scott's Oscar-winning blockbuster of revenge in the Roman arena, as a great general is sadistically betrayed, sold into slavery and becomes legend. Russell Crowe's manly, Academy Award-winning turn as the tormented, gloriously brutal Maximus, Joaquin Phoenix's perverse emperor Commodus and the late, great Oliver Reed's wily slave trainer Proximo are all charismatic.

HANGING UP

MEG RYAN, DIANE KEATON, LISA KUDROW 91 MINS

Walter Matthau, in his last film, plays the terminally ill, senile patriarch who looks on while his three daughters reunite to bicker and make up. Meg Ryan is on fine form as his middle daughter who comes unstuck coping with the burden of responsibility. Keaton (who also directed) and Kudrow play her bitchy elder and brattish younger siblings respectively in this highly autobiographical comedy-drama written by sisters Delia and Nora (Sleepless in Seattle) Ephron.

HERE ON EARTH

LEELEE SOBIESKI, CHRIS KLEIN, JOSH HARTNETT 93 MINS PREMIERE

Adolescent emotions run high in a well-acted, sweet-natured teen drama of two boys – one rich (American Pie's Klein), one working class (The Faculty's Hartnett) – forced to spend a summer working together while competing for the same girl (Deep Impact's Sobieski). ➔

I DREAMED OF AFRICA
KIM BASINGER, VINCENT PEREZ
110 MINS PREMIERE

Spectacular landscapes take the breath away in Hugh Hudson's romantic drama. Kim Basinger stars in the true story of Kuki Gallman, an Italian socialite who, with her new husband (Perez), and young son, began an arduous new life in 1972, farming in Kenya, where she became a conservationist and champion of the fight against poachers.

KEVIN & PERRY GO LARGE
HARRY ENFIELD, KATHY BURKE
80 MINS PREMIERE

TV's highly popular, utterly obnoxious teens Kevin (Harry Enfield) and Perry (Kathy Burke) scored large on the big screen, as the whingeing, spotty youths, desperate to lose their virginity, storm Ibiza, club themselves to death and gross out the tourists with their politically incorrect escapades. Noël Coward it ain't but smutty, scatological oafishness doesn't come much more cheerfully, with Enfield in shameless, triumphantly disgusting form and Burke – one of Britain's greatest actresses or what? – absolutely brilliant as his nitwit sidekick.

See page 45 for our Kathy Burke interview.

THE MATING HABITS OF THE EARTHBOUND HUMAN
MACKENZIE ASTIN, CARMEN ELECTRA, LUCY LIU 87MINS PREMIERE

Frasier's David Hyde Pierce narrates this mockumentary as a hilarious extraterrestrial sociologist explaining human sexual interaction to his own species. Astin and Electra are the duo playing the mating game, oblivious to the fact that they're the stars of an alien educational film. You may find tears of laughter aplenty as you take a very different view of our sexual habits and how we choose our partners – and you'll certainly be left with a smile on your face after seeing your own race as the subject of a kind of intergalactic Wildlife on One. This film's a tonic.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE 2
TOM CRUISE, DOUGRAY SCOTT
119MINS

A $125m budget, a star-studded cast and top action director John Woo are the elements put together for a mission planned to show off Tom Cruise to his most glamorous, impossibly handsome advantage – whether he's dangling on cliff edges, shooting up the bad guys or coolly executing elaborate heists, it's a resounding success. Easier to follow than its predecessor, M:I-2 sees agent Ethan Hunt called in by the covert agency's boss (Anthony Hopkins, with the best line: 'This isn't mission difficult, Mr Hunt, it's mission impossible!') to retrieve and destroy a mysterious substance that has been stolen by a rogue agent (Dougray Scott). Globe-trotting, seduction, cunning disguises and acrobatic action ensues. Even when the twists border on mission preposterous, you are totally aware you are basking in the presence of a star.

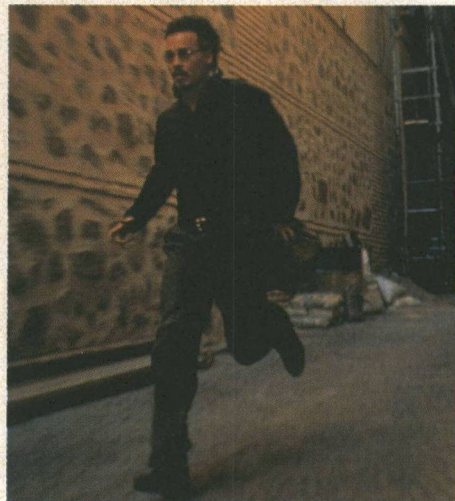

THE NEXT BEST THING
MADONNA, RUPERT EVERETT
104 MINS PREMIERE

The, as ever, impressively toned Madonna is in sassy form as yoga teacher Abbie, who, tired of failed relationships, has a drunken one-night stand with her gorgeous, witty, gay best friend, Robert (Everett). When she learns she's pregnant, the pair are anxious to have the baby, and set up home together to share hands-on parenting in nicely comic style. But five years later, Abbie falls in love with a well-heeled smoothie (Benjamin Bratt), and the pair's friendship is betrayed. The unconventional but loving family disintegrates in a bitter courtroom custody battle. Directed by the venerable John Schlesinger (Midnight Cowboy), this is an emotional tug-of-love tale that takes an unusual look at contemporary alternative lifestyle issues. It plays like a quirky comedy crossed with Kramer vs Kramer-like drama.

See page 47 for our Madonna feature.

THE NINTH GATE
JOHNNY DEPP, FRANK LANGELLA,
LENA OLIN, EMMANUELLE SEIGNER
128 MINS PREMIERE

Rosemary's Baby director Roman Polanski returns to devilish goings-on for this powerful horror mystery. Depp (Sleepy Hollow, Blow) is a shady antiquarian bookseller, Dean Corso, who is hired by a sinister collector (Frank Langella) to hunt for the only two existing copies of the 17th-century Book of the Nine Doors to the Kingdom of Darkness, reputed to hold the key to conjuring Satan. On his search for the rare tomes, Corso finds himself pursued around Europe by Satanists and a green-eyed guardian (Seigner). Can Corso find the book, without endangering his immortal soul? Good versus evil as frights abound in this supernatural shocker.

THE PERFECT STORM
GEORGE CLOONEY, MARK WAHLBERG
125 MINS

This exciting dramatisation of Sebastian Junger's non-fiction best-selling book recreates the most destructive storm on record, and interweaves stories of those fighting for their lives in the North Atlantic with those of rescuers who braved appalling danger and of the anxious vigil ashore. In particular, it engages with the crew of the fishing vessel Andrea Gail and their epic battle against the forces of nature. George Clooney shows that he's every inch a star even when wet as the manly captain, while Mark Wahlberg plays the guy who needed one big catch in order to stay on land with love Diane Lane. Screenwriter Bill Wuttli (Lonesome Dove) upholds the romantic view of heroic seafaring folk, but the real thrills here come from the awesome technical achievements. Director Wolfgang Petersen, celebrated for the submarine classic Das Boot, orchestrates an overwhelming series of aerial and aquatic set-pieces (supervised by John Frazier, the man behind Speed, Twister and Armageddon FX), to devastating effect.

STIR OF ECHOES

KEVIN BACON, KATHRYN ERBE, ILEANA DOUGLAS 96 MINS PREMIERE

Kevin Bacon is superbly believable in a terrifically creepy, ingenious supernatural mystery thriller. He's a frustrated family man who is hypnotised for a prank and discovers it has awakened latent psychic abilities. Suddenly able – like his little boy – to see ghosts, he is haunted by the tragic spectre of a young girl who needs him to find her corpse and expose her murderers, while his wife thinks he's just lost his mind until danger closes in on her family. Very bad timing saw this overshadowed by the more lavish, similarly themed The Sixth Sense on its initial release, but this genuinely scary adaptation of a Richard Matheson novel by Jurassic Park screenwriter-turned-director David Koepp is gripping, atmospheric and full of surprises in its own right.

STUART LITTLE

MICHAEL J FOX (THE VOICE OF STUART LITTLE), GEENA DAVIS 83 MINS

Smash hit family fare with a cute and funny screenplay adapted from an American children's classic by M Night Shyamalan (The Sixth Sense), featuring terrific effects and a delightful cast. Mr and Mrs Little (Hugh Laurie and Geena Davis) decide to adopt a brother for their son George (Jonathan Lipnicki, the little sweetie from Jerry Maguire) and come home with tiny, orphaned talking mouse Stuart. The plucky charmer is soon beloved by all – except the Littles' pudgy tat, Snowbell, who is less than pleased at having a mouse for a new master. Snowbell's jealous schemes to dispose of the rodent lead to hectic misadventures. Animation, computer-generated imagery and animatronics are skilfully combined to make the white mouse captivatingly believable, but the antics of a gang of alley cats, which Snowbell recruits to snatch Stuart, steal the show. Every cat lover will be wondering how they got the moggies to do slapstick stunts worthy of Jackie Chan.

SUPERNOVA

JAMES SPADER, ANGELA BASSETT 87 MINS PREMIERE

Directed by veteran Walter Hill (The Long Riders, Southern Comfort), but credited to the fictitious Thomas Lee because of 'creative differences', this 22nd-century sci-fi adventure nevertheless has some nifty ideas and technical tricks amid the ever-popular peril-in-hyperspace plotting. A deep-space medical team answering a distress call from a comet mining operation in a distant galaxy, rescues a mysterious young man (Peter Facinelli) who may not be what he seems. Yes, it's Dead Calm in space, with anxious pilot James Spader, doctor Angela Bassett and a justifiably unnerved crew (including Lou Diamond Phillips) contending with a psycho, disturbing mutations, and a thingy from another dimension.

THOMAS AND THE MAGIC RAILROAD

PETER FONDA, ALEC BALDWIN, MARA WILSON 86 MINS PREMIERE

Everybody's favourite tank engine and friends have to outwit villainous diesels, enlist a little girl to save a fabled railway line, and restore Mr Conductor's (Alec Baldwin) supply of magic gold dust. Those old enough to remember Peter Fonda as a leather-clad biker in cult favourite Easy Rider will be agog at his turn as Grandpa.

THE TIGGER MOVIE

VOICES OF JOHN HURT, JIM CUMMINGS, NIKITA HOPKINS 75 MINS

A delightfully sweet Disney animated adventure with lots of bounce as tireless Tigger sets off all sad to search for other tiggers, pursued through Hundred Acre Wood by Pooh's search party, who prove real family are those who love you.

28 DAYS

SANDRA BULLOCK, DOMINIC WEST, STEVE BUSCEMI 100 MINS

Sandra Bullock flouts her wholesome image playing an alcoholic, pill-popping writer ordered into a month of rehab after a car crash. Her cynical wisecracking gives way to soul-searching as she makes friends, confronts her demons and sets about putting her relationships in order in this topical comedy-drama.

WHAT PLANET ARE YOU FROM?

GARRY SHANDLING, ANNETTE BENING, BEN KINGSLEY 101 MINS PREMIERE

Amiable sci-fi comedy in which Shandling plays alien Harold Anderson, who has come from an all-male planet where the inhabitants feel no emotion and reproduce by cloning. His mission is to reproduce with an Earthling as phase one of a global conquest. Trouble is, he's clueless about women, and his mechanical manhood is a further disadvantage. Mike Nichols directs Shandling's funny screenplay.

Planning Your Future Finances

Thinking about the Government's new bereavement benefits

Financial planning for the future is something most of us do to some degree, whether it's saving for a mortgage, our children's education or a pension. But how many of us actually think about death – and what it would mean financially if our spouse died?

From a financial point of view, it makes sense to consider how you would cope if the worst did happen and that's where the Government's new bereavement benefits could help.

On 9 April 2001, new bereavement benefits for husbands and wives below state retirement age were introduced. This means that for the first time ever, men receive the same financial support as women, should their spouse die.

As part of the new package, many widows and widowers are able to claim a one-off £2,000 payment – which is double the previous amount on offer. The other advantage is that if you have children and you suffer the loss of either husband or wife, you are entitled to extra financial help.

It makes sense to consider how the Government's new bereavement benefits affect you and how this can be built into your pension and life assurance plans. The DSS has a range of leaflets that give impartial information in plain English on the new bereavement benefits, pensions and financial planning (see end for details).

So, what exactly can widows and widowers get from the new benefits?

The first thing to remember is that the Government will pay you the bereavement benefits that apply to you as long as your husband or wife has paid enough National Insurance contributions and that other conditions are met. You cannot claim the benefits if you are divorced or living with someone else as husband or wife.

■ You may be able to get a tax-free lump sum of £2,000 – double the previous amount on offer. This can help for things like the immediate costs of a funeral.

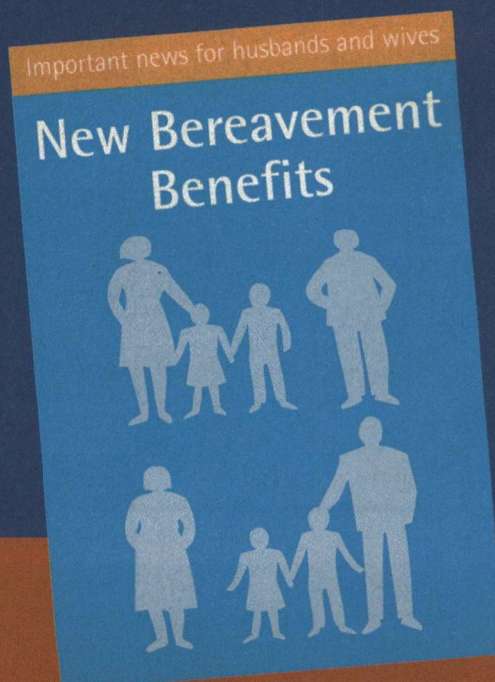

■ If you have children, you may be able to get extra financial help, through the Widowed Parent's Allowance. You would be entitled to this until your children are 16, or 19 if they are in full-time, sixth-form education. Fathers widowed before the new benefits were introduced have, since 9 April 2001, been able to claim this allowance too. If this applies to you, you should make a claim as soon as possible.

■ If you are aged 45 or over without dependent children, you can get a flat-rate benefit for 12 months. The amount will be based on how old you are when you are widowed.

■ If you were getting widow's benefits prior to 9 April 2001, you are not affected by any of the above changes.

What should I be thinking about now?

If you are married, whatever your age, whether you have children or not, it is crucial to make adequate arrangements for income, should your husband or wife die. By seeking advice now, you can plan for a more secure future.

To understand more about the new bereavement benefits, pensions and financial planning, call 0845 7 31 32 33 (quoting BB2). Calls are charged at local rates and the line is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. (A service for textphone users is available on 0845 604 0210.) You can also find out more at www.dss.gov.uk or click on www.ukonline.gov.uk for government information on death and bereavement.

Rebel with a cause

The events depicted in The Patriot are intense and brutal – but that didn't stop star Mel Gibson from indulging his wacky sense of humour. Interview: Lawrie Masterson

Mel Gibson's character in the American Revolution drama The Patriot, widower Benjamin Martin, has seven children. But when Gibson signed up for the part, his own brood numbered only six. It was clear that, for the actor to identify more closely with the role, some serious catching up needed to be done.

'I had to do a lot of work,' he quips. 'But it was the most exciting research I've ever done.'

His wife Robyn gave birth to their seventh child – and sixth son – Thomas just before The Patriot started filming on location in South Carolina. Gibson, 45, even has a wry view of how his youngest fits in with his other children.

'They dig the boy,' he says. 'He's like everybody's little plaything. He's better than a dog and he gets to stay inside.'

A longtime member of Hollywood's so-called 'A List' (and, along with Tom Cruise and Tom Hanks, arguably one of the three most powerful actors in the world), Gibson shows no signs of a career let-up.

When he was offered The Patriot, he was also mulling over sword-and-sandal epic Gladiator, for which Russell Crowe would win an Oscar, and The Perfect Storm, another eventual blockbuster in which George Clooney took the lead.

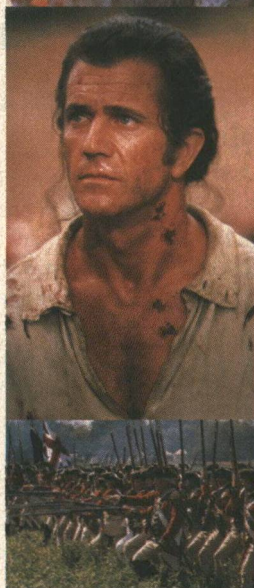

'But I wish people wouldn't say I turned stuff down,' Gibson says, becoming slightly testy. 'I mean, this Patriot script – somebody had their fingerprints on that before I got hold of it. I'm sure Harrison Ford looked at it and said, "Yeah, nice script. I'm going fishing." That's the way the biz is.'

'It's just that I got all three of them at the same time. What do you do? It doesn't rain, it pours, so I just took the one I liked the best.' On paper, he found The Patriot 'moving, involving and compelling'.

The movie was written by Robert Rodat (Saving Private Ryan) and directed by German Roland Emmerich (Independence Day, Godzilla). Opening in 1776, it tells the story of Benjamin Martin, a hero of the French and Indian War who has renounced violence and is trying to raise his seven children on a South Carolina farm following the death of his wife.

Somewhere in his past lies a dark, murderous secret – what exactly happened when he was a guerrilla-style fighter during the French and Indian War?

When a war with England becomes inevitable, Martin's eldest son, Gabriel (played by Heath Ledger), joins the militia against his father's wishes. Then the British, led by the ruthless Colonel Tavington (Jason Isaacs), arrive literally in Martin's backyard and endanger what he holds most dear – his family.

'It's a very personal story set in a huge backdrop,' Gibson says. 'I don't know ... I just identified with it pretty heavily.'

One of the movie's producers, Emmerich's longtime film-making partner Dean Devlin, says he feels he is 'looking at something incredibly private' in Gibson's performance. 'He's willing to go to very dark places within his own psyche and expose them on screen, if they're right for the character.'

'Well,' Gibson replies when told of Devlin's comment, 'who hasn't had a dark night of the soul? We all have some basic kind of thing that we're handling, trying to get away from, and it takes different forms. That's part of the human condition and that's what I like about this story.'

For all the exposure of psyche and visiting of dark places, however, Gibson always found some way to lighten up location shooting. He is known for his willingness to 'hang out' on sets rather than spending all his time closeted in a huge trailer.

'That's boring,' he says. 'What do they do in there?' He pauses and adds: 'I know what some of them do in there!'

Anyone on The Patriot cast or crew wondering whether Gibson's reputation as a practical joker would follow him to South Carolina didn't have to wait long.

On his 44th birthday, Roland Emmerich was directing a huge battle scene with hundreds of costumed extras when Gibson grabbed him and dragged him into the middle of an empty field. Suddenly music started, women dressed as cheerleaders popped up from the long grass and a huge teddy bear appeared.

'And then the highlight,' Emmerich says. 'All the extras turned around and mooned me!' cq

'I'm sure Harrison Ford looked at it and said, "Yeah, nice script. I'm going fishing"'

Why auction prices are so low.

People sell at auction when they are in a hurry. Perhaps they don't want to store the goods any more, or maybe they need the money urgently, or possibly they haven't the facilities to deal with prospective buyers. Whatever the reason, the result is that auction prices represent some unbelievable bargains.

The BIG secret.

Auctions of the type covered by Government Auction News don't get publicised because a) the auctioneers don't make enough profit to make it worth their while and b) most bidders are 'trade' and they don't want extra competition. The one proven way to discover where these auctions are is to read Government Auction News.

Teenage kicks

Kathy Burke reveals the inspiration for her popular spotty teen character Perry – herself! Interview: Brian Viner

Four years ago Kathy Burke received a Christmas card from an old school friend she hadn't seen for ages. It congratulated her on her portrayal of Perry, that lank-haired lump of teenage testosterone who knocks around with fellow teenager-from-hell Kevin, as played by Harry Enfield. But it suggested that the act had not required a great leap of the imagination.

Why? Because when Burke was 13, the old school friend recalled, she had a great deal in common with Perry. 'And it's true,' says Burke, taking a deep drag on a cigarette. 'I was Perry in a skirt, more or less. In fact I was known as Burkey. I was a total tomboy.'

All the same, it is some achievement for an actress in her mid-30s, festooned with awards including the coveted Best Actress award from the Cannes Film Festival (for Gary Oldman's directorial debut Nil by

Mouth), to play with such credibility a zit-squeezing teenage boy obsessed, if you'll pardon the expression, with getting his rocks off. In Kevin & Perry Go Large, she gets to sustain that credibility in a feature film.

'When Harry first suggested it I wasn't sure it would work,' she says. 'I didn't know if they'd get on your nerves after an hour and a bit. It's all right doing sketches, but a film is different. But it was a good script.'

Enfield wanted to call the film Kevin & Perry Go Balearic, but film company executives reckoned that the word Balearic might confuse folk. So it became Kevin & Perry Go Large, and was duly a medium-sized hit, also featuring Steve McFadden (EastEnders' Phil Mitchell), Rhys Ifans and Paul Whitehouse.

It was Whitehouse who suggested years ago that Burke add an awkward adolescent boy to her repertoire. She duly strapped her breasts down, to her considerable discomfort, and unveiled him on The Jonathan Ross Show. When she later teamed up with Enfield – initially to create the Slobs, Wayne and Waynetta – she remembered her other alter ego, Perry.

'I called him Perry after my mate Perry Fenwick, who plays Billy No-Mates in EastEnders,' she explains. 'I thought he would get a kick out of that, and he did.' But on whom did she base Perry, I wonder? 'I based him on lots of young boys I tried to avoid when I was about 13 or 14. I seemed to get a lot of those horrible, messy ones trying to get hold of me. I wasn't interested, though. I wanted the 19-year-olds.'

Burke is engagingly candid about the ups and downs of her sex life, especially the downs, and happily recalls the moment, years ago, when she realised that her new boyfriend was a glue-sniffer. She tasted the Evostick mid-snog, apparently.

She has not found her perfect mate, although she mischievously invented him a couple of years ago in a questionnaire in The Guardian. 'They asked who the greatest love of my life was and I found it impossible to answer because there were so many, so I made up a husband called Greg. I said he was an embalmer I'd met trekking in Tibet. The phone never stopped ringing for weeks after, with people congratulating me and asking when they could meet him.'

So the search for an ideal husband goes on. But Burke has one cast-iron rule: she will not carry on with anyone who is married, despite plenty of offers. Perry, of course, has fewer scruples. Hanky-panky with a married woman is beyond his wildest dreams. But to his enduring frustration, the offers just ain't there. cg

Movies, motherhood and Madonna

She's a singer, a composer, a producer, an actress and a modern day icon. But Madonna says that, above all, being a parent helped her most when preparing for her latest film role in The Next Best Thing. Words: Lawrie Masterson

It's a scene reminiscent of a boxer entering the stadium for a world-title fight – a huge phalanx of bodyguards, trainers and handlers surrounding the combatant, as the excitement rises.

But it is Madonna, not Lennox Lewis, being ushered in to the room. And rather than a robe with her name and the sponsor's logo emblazoned on the back, she's wearing a designer leather coat over a sequined dress, a choker at her throat. Instead of a title fight, Madonna has come for a sparring session with the media.

Singer, songwriter, record company mogul, actress, wife and mother, Madonna is a small woman of 42 who once was described by the New York Post as 'the quintessential symbol of the age: greedy, self-indulgent, sacrilegious, shameless and hollow.'

Madonna's own description? 'I'm just a girl from Michigan,' she says, smiling broadly. Indeed. She also happens to be worth an estimated £150m, has homes in New York, Beverly Hills, and now London.

Madonna married British director Guy Ritchie, 32, in Scotland last December, just over four months after the birth of their son, Rocco. Her four-year-old daughter, Lourdes, from her relationship with personal trainer Carlos Leon, attends the London campus of the French multi-cultural and bi-lingual school, the Lycée.

She recorded her most recent album, Music, in England and Ritchie (Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels, Snatch) directed her controversial video What it Feels Like for a Girl, as well as a commercial she has done for BMW.

'I like the English sense of humour,' Madonna says of life in Britain. 'It's very dry and ironic, and English boys are sexy.' She pauses a beat then adds: 'So are Italians and Latins and French and Australians, yes.'

It's not that Madonna employs all these bodyguards and handlers just so she can wander around and talk to the media about what's going on in her personal life, mind you. She's actually come to talk about her latest movie, The Next Best Thing.

She plays Abbie, a single woman who works as a yoga instructor, and has just about everything in common with her best friend Robert (Rupert Everett) – including miserable luck in relationships. They seem perfect for one another, but there's just one problem – Robert is gay.

There comes a night, however, when fuelled by about 10 too many intoxicating drinks, they fall into bed together. Next thing, Abbie discovers she is pregnant.

For the sake of the child, a son they call Sam (Malcolm Stumpf), Abbie and Robert set up unconventional house together for the next six years. Their family might not be perfect, but it's the next best thing ... until Ben (Benjamin Bratt), an investment banker from New York, comes along. He and Abbie fall for one another, encroaching on the happy lifestyle she and Robert previously had enjoyed with their son.

'I don't think I would have done as good a job in the movie if I hadn't already been a parent,' Madonna says. 'I think I've become a more compassionate person, more sensitive to other people's feelings, more aware of my own actions and words, more patient.'

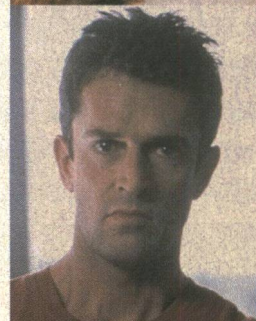

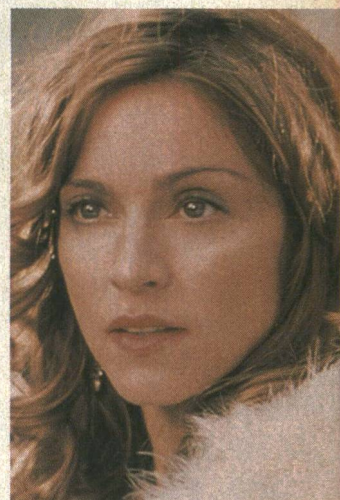

'But I would say the only things I have in common with my character are that I have children, I'm very fond of Rupert and I practise yoga.'

'Other than that, we are very different. I was in a relationship for three years before I decided to have a child with my then boyfriend [Carlos Leon], and my character is in a very different situation.'

'Usually, I have the flashy parts in all the movies I do, but I had the least flashy part in this. Rupert was the diva in the movie, not me. What I liked most about the story was the relationship my character has with Rupert's character.'

Madonna says relationships between women and gay men are, in fact, special. 'I can only speak from the girl's point of view,' she says, 'but with my own gay friends that I adore I just feel really respected and admired as a woman.'

'I don't know. They [gay men] love to throw dinner parties and go shopping and do all the things that we love to do, so they're just great.' cg

A Clockwork Orange makes its British TV premiere this month, 30 years after its first, controversial, cinema release. But was it worth the wait?

The future's orange

So, Stanley Kubrick's A Clockwork Orange, based on the novel by Anthony Burgess, is going to be shown on television 30 years after it was made. Judging by the views of many commentators, this would seem to be one of the signals of cultural apocalypse and our society will be lucky if it's still standing the day after the telecast.

It was always a film that existed in the minds of its fans and its detractors as much as it did on the screen. The novel, written in a futuristic semi-Russian slang, is an Orwellian vision of a hideous future torn between anarchic violence and appalling state repression, and the film is a grotesque satire. In the Kubrick filmography, it is closest to Dr Strangelove – with gurning performances exaggerated by distorted camera work, calmly insane representatives of a clearly corrupt political system and a streak of cataclysmic wishful thinking which makes nuclear apocalypse or meaningless violence somehow as sane a reaction to the problem as anything else.

What Kubrick didn't realise while he was meticulously creating the film, was that audiences and critics would take it either too seriously or not seriously enough.

In the early 1970s, with the film in theatres and the press running stories about Clockwork Orange-inspired crimes, some claimed that the movie was an inspiration for youth violence, and others resented its despairing view of the uses of conditioning and torture to keep the peace. When the National Film Theatre mounted a Kubrick retrospective in 1980, they were surprised to find the film no longer available. The misapprehension persisted for some years that the movie was banned in the UK – forcing fans to travel to Paris, where it played to predominantly English tourists for years – but actually Kubrick himself had withdrawn it. With Kubrick's death, his self-imposed ban has withered: A Clockwork Orange was re-released theatrically and became available on video (a medium it predated).

Now it's on television. Inevitably, as with all films about the future, it remains striking for its wrong guesses and obvious 1971-isms: Alex (Malcolm McDowell) plays Beethoven on vinyl and Mr Alexander (Patrick Magee) taps out subversive literature on a huge IBM typewriter. But, 30 years ago, the film was wrestling with issues still high on the political agenda, and its busybody politicians, penologists and doctors sound horribly like Jack Straw or Anne Widdicombe debating useless but appalling law and order policies.

While it was out of circulation, the film became a millstone to its creators – Burgess came to resent the way one of his novels was always better-known than the rest of his works (he also wasn't happy that Kubrick accidentally didn't film his last chapter, omitted in the US edition of the book used as the basis for the script), and Kubrick was genuinely disturbed by the appropriation of the work as a totem by people he despised.

Now it's back in currency, perhaps the film will finally find its place – as classic science fiction, as a key Kubrick work and a still-relevant comment about crime and punishment. cg

Clockwise from right: a striking pop art set; Alex (Malcolm McDowell) undergoes treatment to cure him of his violent tendencies; Kubrick at work; Alex raises a glass of 'milk plus drenchrom'

BLUE STREAK

Martin Lawrence, Peter Greene
It's been a while since Bad Boys, but Martin Lawrence has never quite hit the same heights. Still, this lively crime comedy should raise a smile or two. He's Miles Logan, a jewel thief betrayed by fellow criminal Deacon (Greene) but managing to hide a diamond in a building site before he's sent down. On his release he discovers the building has become a police station. So he fakes police ID and gains access while he tries to find the jewel. He's soon heading the burglary team. But how long before he's busted by the real cops – and Deacon?
Sky Premier, Saturday 7th, 8.00pm

HIGH NOON

Gary Cooper, Grace Kelly
An intensely gripping, classic Western. The clock is ticking as marshal Cooper waits for the train carrying the gunfighter who'll probably kill him, while everyone else in town runs for cover and his new wife, Grace Kelly, tries to persuade him to do the same. But a man's gotta do what a man's gotta do.

Sky Cinema, Sunday 1st, 2.15pm

YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN

Gene Wilder, Marty Feldman
A hilarious yet affectionate spoof of the classic horror movies of the 1930s, directed with style by Mel Brooks using props and sets from the 1931 Frankenstein. One-time Brooks regular Gene Wilder, who co-wrote the script with the director, is suitably over-the-top as the mad inventor's grandson ('It's pronounced Fronkenstein!'), and the film's full of brilliant sight gags. Watch out for Marty Feldman's hump and Gene Hackman as a dangerously blind hermit.
Carlton Cinema, Saturday 7th, 9.00pm

END OF DAYS

Arnold Schwarzenegger
As the Millennium approached, Hollywood started getting the jitters. So who better to save the world than Arnold Schwarzenegger, playing a tired ex-cop who has to defend the planet from the oncoming apocalypse heralded by suave devil Gabriel Byrne. Worth sticking with for the special effects-laden climax.

KIRK DOUGLAS SEASON

THE BAD AND THE BEAUTIFUL
LUST FOR LIFE
TWO WEEKS IN ANOTHER TOWN
THE HOOK
Kirk Douglas – one of the last surviving members of Hollywood's old guard – is celebrated with this well-selected season of films. Here's a chance to revisit his work with director Vincente Minnelli, who furnished the star with some great roles. The two Tinseltown melodramas, The Bad and the Beautiful and Two Weeks, are impressive, but Douglas comes into his own as the tortured Vincent Van Gogh in Lust for Life. There's also the chance to see him in a lower key, but taking the moral high ground, in George Seaton's Korean war drama The Hook.

TCM, Tuesdays until 17th, see listings for times

STIGMATA

Patricia Arquette
Hairdresser Arquette gets sent some mysterious beads and then starts bleeding from her hands and feet. The Vatican sends priest Gabriel Byrne to investigate what seems like a case of demonic possession. We're in Exorcist territory but at a more frantic pace.

PICK OF THE DAY

The Patriot

Mel Gibson, Tom Wilkinson, Heath Ledger, Joely Richardson
Mel Gibson turns in another stirring performance as heroic Benjamin Martin in this Braveheart-style epic drama set during the American War of Independence. Benjamin is happily retired from the army, until the murder of his son by a sadistic British colonel forces him to cast aside his pacifist stance and form a rebel militia. A bloody path lies ahead as he wreaks his revenge.

PICK OF THE DAY

Lust for Life

TCM 9.00pm
Anthony Quinn, Kirk Douglas, James Donald, Pamela Brown
The title could be Kirk Douglas's epitaph judging by the amount of times he's narrowly escaped death. In this 1956 Vincente Minnelli-directed biopic, Douglas gives an emotional performance as the tortured genius Vincent Van Gogh and won himself an Oscar nomination for his trouble. Perfectionist Minnelli filmed 200 of the painter's masterpieces. The resulting visual feast was well worth his efforts.

PICK OF THE DAY

The Vicar of Dibley UK Gold from 9.00pm

A double helping, starting from the very first episode, of this ecclesiastical comedy penned by Richard Curtis, the man behind some of the UK's most successful comedies (Blackadder, Four Weddings and a Funeral and Bridget Jones's Diary). Dawn French plays Geraldine, the larger-than-life vicar, who arrives in the parish of Dibley to take up her duties, following the death of her predecessor. Bemused by her gender, all the locals take to their chocolate-loving spiritual guide, except right-wing squire, David Horton.

PICK OF THE DAY

Angel

Sky One 9.00pm

Featuring hunky David Boreanaz's Angel, Buffy the Vampire Slayer's moody vampire ex-boyfriend, in his own darker, more adult spin-off series. This has proved a smart move for Buffy creators Joss Whedon and David Greenwalt. Now a cult show in its own right, here's a chance to enjoy a rerun of the first series. Following his departure from Sunnydale, Angel relocates to LA in search of redemption and sets up a detective agency investigating demonic activity.

PICK OF THE DAY

Nearly Popstars
ITV2 2.50pm

You thought you'd heard the last of the wannabe popstars who didn't make it to the final Hear'Say line-up? Think again. This one-off special finds out what happened to the rejects after they got the elbow from nasty Nigel and the team of judges on national television. Extrovert Darius has turned up on various TV shows, including an cringe-inducing appearance on Never Mind the Buzzcocks. Is there nothing celebrity-seeking youngsters won't do to get themselves on the box?

PICK OF THE DAY

Is She MTV?

MTV 9.30pm

The search for a suitable female on-screen partner for Richard Blackwood to host MTV Select is on. Throughout the month, MTV visits four cities each weekend, holding open auditions. Doors open at 8.30am and the first 1800 to turn up and register each day will be auditioned. A finalist will be picked from each day and the final eight contenders will then be off to London to try their luck at presenting the show. Today we follow the gruelling selection process of the first 1800 wannabes.

PICK OF THE DAY

Behind the Badge Discovery 11.00pm

You've seen the endless array of American television cop series — now get a glimpse of a real American police force. Detroit is a city rife with murder, theft, drug dealing and racial tension and its police officers have more than their fair share of problems. Maintaining a happy family life while enduring constant pressure in the line of duty is an almost impossible tightrope to walk. Tales of marital strife and emotional turmoil are par for the course in this revealing documentary filmed entirely in Detroit.

PICK OF THE DAY

The Micallef Programme Paramount Comedy Channel 11.00pm

Asked to name an Aussie comic and most Brits would come up with Barry Humphries or Paul Hogan. What much Aussie comedy shares is a ruthless capacity to go below the belt and in this new series, hosted by up-and-coming Aussie comic Shaun Micallef, there's plenty of crudity all round. Blending the traditional chat show format with sketches and send-ups, The Micallef Programme includes topics not discussed in polite society.

PICK OF THE DAY

Making the Video:

U2's Elevation
MTV 7.30pm

It's 25 years since they first got together and U2 are still one of the world's biggest rock acts. Their most recent album, All That You Can't Leave Behind, may sound suspiciously like some of their earlier anthems but it's a sound that continues maintain the band's superstar status. Follow the making of the video to Elevation, written for the much-anticipated film Tomb Raider, the adaptation of the cult PlayStation game featuring Angelina Jolie.

PICK OF THE DAY

Maggots, Leeches and Bees: The Bite That Cures Discovery Channel 10.00pm

We usually think that 20th-century medicine relies on cutting-edge technology and scientifically proven drugs but, with antibiotics now resisting new virus strains, today's doctors are looking far and wide for alternatives. Living creatures such as leeches, maggots and bees are now being used in a highly effective technique called biosurgery. This documentary features re-enactments of real-life stories, actual footage and stunning 3D graphics.

PICK OF THE DAY

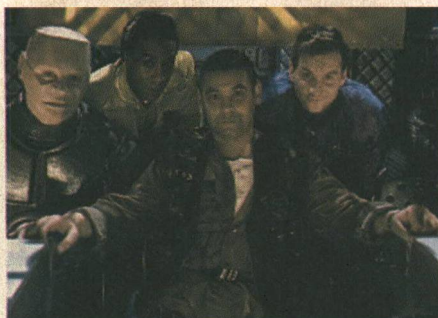

Kevin & Perry Go Large

Harry Enfield, Kathy Burke
In surly adolescent Kevin and his equally hormonally challenged, unintelligible friend Perry (Burke), Harry Enfield created a monster and his mate familiar to many parents of teenagers. The finely tuned mannerisms and interplay between Enfield and Burke made this comedy partnership a gem and filmmakers didn't take long to spot it. In this, their first movie outing, Kevin and Perry are out to lose their virginity in Ibiza. Many a gag about the male sexual organ follows.

PICK OF THE DAY

Conquistadors

UK Horizons 9.00pm
In this new series, writer and historian Michael Wood follows the bloody trail of the 16th-century Spanish conquest of South America. In their search for gold and glory, the Conquistadors destroyed the Aztecs, the Incas, the Mayans and other ancient South American civilisations. Over four episodes, Wood relates amazing tales of conquest, heroism and greed including Cortés's bloodthirsty destruction of the Aztecs in Mexico and Orellana's mythical search for El Dorado and his discovery of the Amazon.

PICK OF THE DAY

World of Pub

Play 9.40pm, 12.10am, 2.30am

A galaxy of British comedy talent can be seen in this Tony Roche-penned comedy series, which began life on Radio 4, and features Kevin Eldon, Phil Cornwell and Alistair McGowan. Meet pub landlords Barry and Garry, who are trying to pull in the punters to their East London hostelry. But even stunts like Pub Olympics, featuring the freestyle selling roses for the lady competition, or opening the pub exclusively to women inevitably end in disaster. Shades of Al Murray's pub landlord?

PICK OF THE DAY

The Ninth Gate

Johnny Depp, Emmanuelle Seigner, Frank Langella, Lena Olin
When it comes to eliciting fear on film, director Roman Polanski is one of the best. In this supernatural thriller he casts Johnny Depp as a sleazy book dealer who's been asked by a mysterious stranger to track down a rare 17th-century occult work. There's horror ahead as Corso (Depp) discovers the book has been written by Satan himself and its engravings contain a secret that could unleash the gates of hell.

Mulan

Disney Channel 4.00pm

Voices of Ming-Na, Miguel Ferrer, Harvey Fierstein, Miriam Margolyes, Eddie Murphy
The television premiere of Disney's animated Chinese adventure also has the advantage of being screened during an unencrypted weekend. Based on a popular Chinese myth, it tells the story of a brave young woman who, fearing that her ailing father will be killed in a battle against the Hun leader, disguises herself as a man to train as a fighter. With the help of her guardian dragon Mushu, she becomes a brave warrior.

For most of us the ideal job is a safe, well-paid one. This explosive documentary follows one individual who has sought out a dangerous career. Holly Bennett is training to become Britain's first female explosives engineer. Her first job is to blow up Rochdale's 1960s tower block Elgol Court, a task fraught with problems. The building is 13 stories high, just six metres from its nearest neighbour, on top of a steep hill and next door to an electricity substation. How will Holly cope with this potentially disastrous situation?

Johnny Depp, Christina Ricci, Christopher Walken, Miranda Richardson

Johnny Depp and Edward Scissorhands director Tim Burton are reunited in this gothic fairy tale set in upstate New York 1799. Constable Ichabod Crane (Depp) is called to the small village of Sleepy Hollow to investigate a series of beheadings attributed to a local ghost dubbed 'The Headless Horseman'. Aided by Katrina Van Tassel (Ricci) he sets out to dispel this theory through logic and science.

PICK OF THE DAY

Shark Gordon: Port Jackson Sharks Discovery 9.00pm

Witness the extraordinary breeding patterns of the Port Jackson shark in this documentary filmed in the waters around Jervis Bay, on the east coast of Australia. From winter through to the spring, the sharks mate in these sub-tropical waters and the female lays her eggs that harden to become highly durable ornate and spiral shapes (sometimes called 'mermaid's purses'). The baby sharks emerge up to a year later with a full set of teeth, ready for action.

PICK OF THE DAY

The Muse Sky Premier 10.10pm

Albert Brooks, Andie MacDowell, Jeff Bridges, Sharon Stone

In this sharply scripted satire, Albert Brooks plays a wisecracking comedy scriptwriter who is losing his knack. In desperation he visits successful writer friend Jack (Bridges) and discovers that the secret of his success is a highly attractive professional 'muse' (Stone), who provides inspiration at a price. A witty attack on Hollywood, The Muse goes behind the scenes to reveal the vacuous world of the movies.

Record holder for fastest ever stages of the Tour de France

'It's the biggest annual sporting event in the world – bar none,' says British Eurosport cycling pundit Chris Boardman of this month's Tour de France. And he should know, having competed in the event six times before his retirement from professional cycling last year.

Looking ahead to this year's big race, Boardman doesn't see any big upsets in prospect. 'Favourites do tend to be up there, because it becomes a very physical race. Tactics play a part but, once you start going up a hill of that kind of length – say, about an hour long – it is a physical thing, there's no slipstream and everybody's riding an individual time trial. You find your level on the Tour, or the Tour finds your level for you. So I think the winner will come from the favourites – the [Lance] Armstrongs, the [Jan] Ullrichs. Having said that, I think you'll also see a crop of younger guys coming through this year.'

An athlete whose greatest exploits came in individual cycling events, Boardman is quick to point out the importance of the team aspect of the Tour.

'It is a team race – for an individual to win the Tour is very difficult. Not impossible – Greg Lemond proved that back in 1989 with ADR. He virtually had no team.

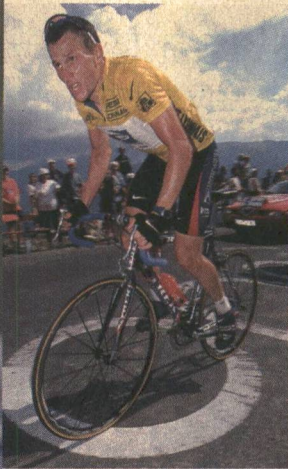

But on the whole, if you've won a Tour, you can't win as an individual. People will attack you when you're vulnerable. You need a team to do all the things that keep it together until you do your bit that wins the race – which generally involves going uphill.'

Boardman's own speciality on the Tour was the Prologue time trial, but he stresses that good performances in the mountain stages provide the key to doing well in this gruelling event.

'Climbing is the most important ability. After that, the decisive element is the time trial – you can lose hours on a climb, you can gain minutes on a time trial. Sprinting is probably the only thing you don't need to be able to do on a Tour. It would make a fantastic Tour if it came down to a sprint, but it virtually never does.'

The 2001 race gets rolling on Thursday 7th with the Prologue at Dunkirk and concludes, three weeks later, on Paris's Champs Elysées. 'The key stages this year are 10 and 11. The first is a very high mountain phase; the next day, stage 11, is an uphill 82km individual time trial, average 7.1 per cent [incline]. That is the key day – that'll really show you who's likely to win the Tour. But the Tour's not decided on somebody having a really good day – it's when somebody cracks.'

A shadow still hanging over the sport, which

'The Tour's not decided on somebody having a really good day – it's when somebody cracks' hopefully won't taint this year's Tour de France, is the doping scandal that first hit the headlines in 1998.

'I really feel sorry for the governing body, because they are totally up against it,' says Boardman. 'It's always going to be a problem, because there will always be people in life who want to cheat and take short cuts. The problem lies in the fact that the potential reward is, for some people, still worth the risk.'

Boardman's memories of his own Tour rides are coloured by the medical problems he experienced. 'Grim pretty much sums it up. It's not an excuse thing, because I'm perfectly content with the way it all turned out [see panel, left]. But towards the end of my career, the last two years, we found out that I was very low in certain hormones, the ones that make you recover. That caused a condition called osteopaedia, which is the precursor to osteoporosis – I've known about that for a couple of years and undergone treatment to stop the bone loss. It helped in some ways, because it made me understand why it was that I would be as strong as some of the best guys in the race for a couple of days and then go downhill very quickly.'

It was partly this medical development that prompted Boardman's retirement from the sport. 'I always said I would stop when I was 32, but the reasons changed along the way – it wasn't beneficial to my health to be doing this. The irony is that, if I had been taking drugs, I would have been a much healthier person for it. For a while it was just so frustrating – the power was there, but I couldn't recover like everybody else around me could.'

'I was trying to find out why this was and trying different things, different kinds of training. I knew I would never be a contender for a long-stage race, and it helps you to accept it when you know why that is.'

Ex-England rugby star Jeremy Guscott retired almost two years ago, but he says that his time as a British Lion is still his pride and joy. Interview: Ross Biddiscombe

THE LION'S PRIDE

If you had told former England and British Lions centre Jeremy Guscott at the start of his career that most rugby fans would end up remembering him better for a single drop goal than for all the spectacular tries he would score, then he'd have laughed in your face.

However, this is not so far from the truth. While wearing the famous Lions red shirt, one of Bath's favourite rugby sons stroked a peach of a three-pointer to win the second Test against South Africa and the 1997 series.

Obviously, there was a whole squad of 40-odd players, coaches and officials who also played a part in the events, but Guscott had the privilege of scoring the drop goal – the rugby equivalent of Geoff Hurst's 1966 World Cup hat trick or Sam Torrance's 1985 Ryder Cup 18th-green putt.

'It was one of the last significant moments of my career, so I suppose many people will always think about it when they think of me,' says Guscott, who is now retired but will be working in Australia as an ambassador for Lions sponsors Zurich.

Strangely, though, Guscott has never seen the TV pictures of his famous kick. He prefers his own memory of what happened. 'With the late position we were in in that game against the Springboks, there was actually nothing else I could do. I was just the right man at the right time,' he recalls matter-of-factly.

The 1997 Lions tour was the first to be comprehensively televised for fans in Britain. Sky Sports broadcast every game live – even the previously ignored midweek games – so that British fans back home could more easily follow the trials and tribulations of the players' lives in the cauldron of South Africa. Such coverage has helped lift the prestige behind being a Lion to even higher levels.

'There's no bigger honour for any player from the home nations,' says Guscott. 'It's the pinnacle of your international career and you can only consider that you've really made it as an international if you've played for the Lions. I was talking to [Iain] Balshaw before the tour and he still couldn't believe it. He couldn't wait to go. The feeling is the same now as it's always been.'

The Lions is also a place where the reputations of untried internationals can be forged. On the last Lions tour, the unsung, ex-rugby league winger John Bentley came home a rugby union hero even though it was performances for the midweek team that stood out, while Guscott's experience was also a case in point. He toured with the 1989 Lions after winning just one England cap, but he forced his way into the Test team, scored a great try and kick-started his international career.

These are stories that the fans recall, but it is the personal friendships that remain indelibly printed on the minds of the players. For proof, witness the public grief for Scotland's lock forward Gordon Brown recently after his premature death from cancer; true, 'Broom from Troon' was a Scot through and through, but he was equally mourned by his Lions team-mates of the 1970s. After a hard Six Nations series, it may seem impossible for erstwhile opponents to suddenly become friends for life, but Guscott knows this is true.

'There are no enemies among Lions, no barriers between the players. You soon become very good friends because you train hard and are together for all those weeks,' he says.

Rule changes, allowing multiple substitutions, have also brought to an end any chance of antagonism between players on the midweek team (known as the dirt-trackers) and those in the Test XIV.

The one downside is the boredom factor of a Lions tour – weeks away from home and seemingly endless games of cards or pool to fill the time. But at least there is one advantage to playing in the Southern Hemisphere at this time of year. As Guscott says: 'People at home might be having long, sunny evenings, but it's winter in Australia so it gets dark pretty quickly and that makes the days go quicker when you're not playing.' CG

Smurfit European Open
Thursday 5th, 10.30am, 3.00pm, SK1
Visits to Ireland have been special for England's Lee Westwood. The 28-year-old from Nottinghamshire, who won the 2000 Volvo Order of Merit, has won the Smurfit European Open at the K Club near Dublin for the last two years. Now a family man (the birth of his first child in April caused him to miss the US Masters), Westwood needs to return to the form of 12 months ago after taking it easy at the start of the season, if he is to make it a hat trick of wins at this tournament.

CYCLING

Tour de France
Saturday 7th, 4.30pm, ESP
Despite the drugs controversies of recent years, the 88th Tour de France, which starts today, is still one of the biggest events in the whole sporting calendar. American Lance Armstrong, the winner of the last two years, is favourite again in 2001. The 3462km race starts with today's Prologue stage held in Dunkirk, which first hosted a stage in 1911. Ahead are 20 gruelling stages, with former Olympic gold medallist Chris Boardman in the commentary team.

TENNIS

ATP Tournament in Gstaad
Tuesday 10th, 11.30am, ESP
France has been lauded as second only to Spain as the most successful producers of new tennis talent in recent years. Among the male prospects, 23-year-old Sebastien Grosjean has emerged as the most likely new star. The Marseilles-born right-hander, who reached the semi-finals of last month's French Open, will be one of the favourites for this week's ATP Tour event, which is being held in Gstaad.

RUGBY UNION

Australia v the Lions Second Test
Saturday 7th, 9.00am, SK1
The crucial second Test between Australia and the Lions comes from the Colonial Stadium in Melbourne. With one Test down and just one to go after today's encounter, the stakes could not be much higher. The scrum-half position will be crucial, with two of its finest exponents in opposite camps: Australia's George Gregan should keep the Wallabies' motor running smoothly, while the Lions may have a selection dilemma – will it be England's Matt Dawson or Wales' Robert Howley who wears the No 9 shirt?

'I have to win a Championship to be a name in my own right'

FULL throttle

Neil Hodgson is moving things up a gear for this month's World Superbike races, with the Championship clearly in his sights.
Interview: Simon Johnson

Neil Hodgson believes strong finishes at Laguna Seca, USA, and Brands Hatch this month could put him on the verge of winning his first World Superbike title.

Since making a shaky start to the season, Hodgson has grown in confidence and closed the gap on the leaders. The turning point came at the first meeting in England at Donington in May, where the Lancastrian won his first race of the season and followed it up with a commendable second-placed finish. It lifted the reigning British Superbike champion to fifth in the standings, but with a possible 50 points to be won at each race meeting, Hodgson insists he can still challenge at the top.

'I had an inconsistent start to the season, but things can turn around quickly,' he says. 'If I can carry on the form that I showed at Donington and be dominant, I have a chance.'

'My championship bid has come alive again and I'm going to be racing on my two favourite tracks. I have four rivals for the Championship, but I wouldn't want to bet on anybody because it is wide open. I don't fear anyone, but Colin Edwards has already won the championship and that experience could prove the difference.'

For Hodgson, 27, this is his first season back in World Superbike since 1998, where he had three years of reasonable success, but finished ninth in the final overall standings.

What has made Hodgson's return more of a challenge has been the unenviable task of following Britain's most successful Superbike rider, Carl Fogarty, who won the championship four times.

Fogarty retired last year, after his season was curtailed by injury, and Hodgson found he had to shoulder the British fans' hopes.

'I don't feel any pressure following Carl,' he says. 'He left an army of fans behind who expect a lot, but they are supporting the rest of the British riders and hopefully I can keep the flag flying high.'

'Carl still comes to see the races and when I see him he inspires me,' he adds. 'I do believe I have to win a World Championship to be a name in my own right. If I don't, I feel like I won't have achieved anything. I have achieved more than the majority of riders do in a career, but that is the goal I have set myself and it means a lot to me.'

Hodgson is confident that he will be World Champion eventually because he has the perfect combination, being part of the GSE Racing team and riding a Ducati.

'I believe it is the best bike around,' he says. 'It is just a shame I am on last year's model. I also need to improve my starts and the way I set the bike up, but I am getting better, and there's more to come.'

Carl Fogarty's success will never be forgotten, but Neil Hodgson may be about to carve his own name in the hearts of British fans. CG
